7. In section 35 of the said Act, for the words and figures " the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 " the words and figures " the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923 " shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Bengal Cruelty to Animals Act, which was passed in 1920, has so far remained inoperative owing to the difficulty in finding a suitable agency to administer its provisions. The original idea was that it should be administered through a City Veterinary Department, which the Corporation contemplated establishing, and provision was made under section 30 for the delegation of the powers under it to any person or local authority. The City Veterinary Department has not, however, materialised yet, and Government, therefore, propose to entrust the administration of the Act to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The Act has been examined from this point of view and certain amendments are found to be necessary before it can be brought into force.

2. Under sections 16 and 18 a police officer, or any other person duly authorised by the local Government, may take a bullock cart to a weighbridge and the excess load removed under section 17 has to be kept at the weighbridge for 48 hours and, if it is not claimed during this period, it has to be removed to the nearest police-station and there kept in the custody of the officer in charge on his own responsibility until removed by the owner. Now it is impossible for the police to provide godowns for the storage of these goods or to deal with the handling of them: nor is it reasonable that the officer in charge of the police-station should be held responsible for their custody. The Society are prepared to provide two central godowns, they are prepared to put men in charge of them and to deal entirely with the custody and delivery of the loads, but under the law they cannot do so because the load must be removed after 48 hours to the nearest police-station, and it is only an officer in charge of a police-station who can be made responsible for their custody. The Bill provides for the removal of these loads from the weighbridge direct to a central godown and for their storage there until the owner claims them. It authorises Government to make any person other than an officer in charge of a police-station responsible for the custody of the goods. It further empowers Government to appoint some one other than the Commissioner of Police to perform the functions imposed on the Commissioner of Police under sub-section (3) of section 19. Finally, under these sections as they stand, the charge for removal and detention of the loads can be levied on the owner only after the goods have been removed to a police-station on the expiry of 48 hours. It is reasonable that the whole cost of handling the goods and conveying them to the central godown should be liable to be recovered from the owner and provision has been made in the Bill to this effect, but there will be no charge if the goods are removed within the period specified in the notice of the weighbridge officer.

3. Much attention has been directed lately to the cruelty involved in the use of buffaloes for draught purposes in the middle of the day in the hot season: opportunity has been taken to penalise such practice by providing a clause in the Bill.

General letter No. 3, dated Calcutta, the 15th June 1926.

From—W. McC. SHARPE, ESQ., I.C.S., Officiating Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, Appellate Side,

To—The District and Sessions Judges, District Magistrates and Deputy Commissioners in Bengal and Assam.

I am directed to forward, for your information and for communication [to the Courts of the (a) Additional Judges/Magistrates (b), if any, as well as] to the Courts subordinate to you, a copy of a memorandum No. 1860, dated the 27th March 1926, from the Registrar, Allahabad High Court, forwarding a copy of a judgment of that Court directing the removal of the name of Babu Shambhu Nath Mehrotra from the roll of Vakils of that High Court.

In the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad.

(Civil Side.)

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.

Dated Allahabad, the 15th March 1926.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble C. Walsh, K.C. ... ... Judge

The Hon'ble B. J. Dalal ... ... Judge

and

The Hon'ble G. P. Boys ... ... Judge.

Miscellaneous Case No. 741 of 1926.

In the matter of Babu Shambhu Nath Mehrotra, son of Lal Balmukundji, Vakil, Shahjahanpur.

By the Court.

In this case a Vakil of this Court, Shambhu Nath Mehrotra, was reported to this Court for having been engaged in various fraudulent Bill transactions which had been criminally investigated. Various serious charges of complicity and fraudulent dealings by him were made to this High Court in a report by the Sessions Judge. It, therefore, became the duty of this Court, in the exercise of its disciplinary jurisdiction and in the public interest to issue notice to Shambhu Nath Mehrotra to show cause why he should not be struck off the rolls of the Vakils of this Court for professional misconduct. The matter was one which obviously necessitated an elaborate investigation into the details of the aforesaid fraudulent transactions. Before the case was ripe for hearing Babu Shambhu Nath Mehrotra, through his Advocate Mr. Peare Lal Banerji, sent in his certificate of enrolment to the High Court with an application stating that he had been enrolled in this Court since the year 1917, that he had practised in Shahjahanpur and Lucknow and that he had given up practice altogether in 1924, that he had not renewed his certificate for 1925-26, and that he has now no intention of practising either in the Courts subordinate to this High Court or in the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court of Oudh, or in any Court in any province in British India. Under the circumstances we are of opinion that no public interest will be served by further investigation into the charges against the Vakil in view of the fact that he does not wish them to be further investigated and that he has given up practice. We, therefore, order his resignation to be recorded and his name to be struck off the rolls of the Vakils of this Court, and that a note be made of the fact that he took this course while a series of fraudulent charges were hanging over his head, and that no steps were taken by him to clear himself.

Let this order be communicated to the Local Government, and to the Chief Court of Oudh, and to the Registrars of all the High Courts in India. So far as this High Court is concerned it is understood that no application by Shambhu Nath Mehrotra for re-admission to the rolls of this Court will under any circumstances be entertained.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2492L., dated Calcutta, the 26th July, 1926.—With reference to the second foot-note on page 68 of Part IV of the Calcutta Gazette dated the 22nd July, 1926, relating to the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1926 (a Bill further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885), and in continuation of this office notification No. 2320L., dated the 16th July, 1926, it is hereby notified that Rai Harendranath Chaudhuri, M.L.C., has appended the following minute of dissent to the said Report :—

Minute of Dissent by Rai Harendranath Chaudhuri, M.L.C.

At the outset I confess that I do not approve of the proposed scheme of amendment of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Partial and patchwork amendment—tinkering here and there—is not, in my humble opinion, what is required of the present Tenancy Act. A landlaw that has created many doubts and has given rise to numerous conflicts and enormous litigation that has encouraged fraud on law and has provided little or no scope for development of the land stands condemned. The sooner it is replaced by a simpler statute by a sounder system of law that will offer less chances of conflict and ensure greater scope for land improvement the better for all concerned.

But the framers of this Bill appear to hold a different view. They seem to think that though the administration of the present landlaw may have resulted in huge litigation yet it has not disclosed any fundamental and vital defects. All that is necessary therefor, in their opinion, is to delete a few words and clauses here and introduce some new ones there. We had to confine our endeavours only to the narrow limits and scope of the Bill so much so that we could not even move amendments consistent with the objects of the Bill unless they appertained to sections directly covered by the specific clauses of the proposed measure.

That being the case, it has not been possible for us to start with a recognition of certain fundamental principles and, judging every amendment in the light of these principles, to arrive at a consistent piece of landlaw bringing about a harmonious adjustment of the apparently conflicting interests of the landlords and the tenants. The result is that in not a few cases the Bill, as it has emerged from the Select Committee, embodies not so much definite conclusions flowing from well-recognised principles as results of voting on a piecemeal consideration of words and clauses. This is certainly not the proper method of amending a law which will in one way or other affect the life and well-being of about 95 per cent of the population of Bengal.

With this foreward I proceed to detail the main points of my disagreement with the Bill as reported by the Select Committee :

Clause 17, new section 26G (6), and clause 97.—I begin with the question of merger. This foreign doctrine as embodied in section 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has been, as it is well-known, a fruitful source of litigation in this country. Since Sir Barnes Peacock delivered the judgment reported in 10 W. R. p. 15 and down to the present time the law of merger has been consistently held to be inapplicable to the mufassal and warning after warning has been given from the highest court of law that the English Common law of merger should not be applied to cases in this country without qualifying it by all the principles enunciated by courts of equity. The Select Committee therefore proceeded to minimise, if not to do away with, this imported source of trouble in the landlaw of this country by limiting the principle of merger only to the case of the unification of the entire interests of the landlord and the tenant in the same person by voluntary purchase. In the consideration of section 22 therefore, far from accepting the further complications that were proposed to be introduced by the revised section 22 as it stood in the introduced Bill, they have made the law simpler by changing sub-section (2) and deleting sub-sections (3), (4), (5) and (6) of the original section, i.e., of section 22 of the present Act, and deemed it absolutely unnecessary and unjustifiable to provide for merger in the case of acquisition of inferior rights by a co-sharer landlord. For why should the co-sharer landlord or even the sole landlord be placed in an inferior position to a third person when the subordinate interest is placed before the open market is a question which can never be satisfactorily answered. The Select Committee therefore removed this anomaly by omitting sub-section (2) and restricting merger only to the case contemplated by sub-section (1) of the existing section 22. To this amendment the Government agreed, but when section 158B was reached they again insisted on applying the doctrine of merger to the co-sharer landlord's purchase in pursuance of a decree obtained in a rent suit under section 148A and introduced the new proviso under section 158B. Thus, exploiting the construction placed by section 148A on the rent decree obtained by co-sharer landlord in pursuance of a suit under that section, a third person purchasing at a rent-sale is again placed in a better position than a co-sharer landlord even if the latter purchases the jama in pursuance of a rent decree obtained by him under section 148A. What better equity can a third person—a stranger—have as against the co-sharer landlord or even against the sole landlord in such a case of involuntary sale it is really very difficult to understand. And I therefore disagree with the proviso added at the end of sub-section (1) of section 158B (see clause 97) and would also suggest the deletion of the words "subject to the provisions of section 22" in sub-section (1) of the same section and the omission of the same words from the new section 26G (6) (i). (See page 11 of the Bill as reported by the Select Committee.)

Clause 19.—As regards the question of trees, I have to point out that, with a view to save contracts, I moved an amendment and suggested on the lines of the corresponding provision of the Madras Estates Land Act (section 12 of Madras Act I of 1908) that the amended section 23A should begin with some such words as "subject to any rights reserved to the landlord by a contract in writing". But the amendment was rejected.

Clause 20.—I have no mind to make any remark against anything in clause 20 which has been settled upon a basis of compromise, but I cannot help pointing it out that the proposed section 26K (2) (ii) in so far as it provides that "transfer" in sections 26C, 26D, 26G and 26KK does not include "lease" keeps the door open for fraudulent transfers and will permit dishonest men to defraud the landlords and avoid the payment of landlord's transfer fees, etc., by transferring their holdings in the shape of lease. Not kobalas but leases will, I am afraid, henceforth come into vogue and all the provisions of sections 26A to G will be rendered illusory. The provisions of section 26KK (1) and (2) also allow the perpetrators of fraud on law to escape with milder punishment. Consistently with the provision in section 26B the proper course would have been to allow the landlord to take khas possession of an occupancy-raiyati holding sold fraudulently with a deliberate misdescription. But section 26KK as it stands will compel the landlord to run to courts and have the transfer declared to be a transfer of an occupancy-raiyati holding after a protracted and costly litigation. Whether in view of section 188 it will be possible for any but a sole landlord or even if section 188 do not stand in the way it will be to the interest of and practicable for a co-sharer landlord to take all the costly steps just to expose a fraud on law and thereafter share the benefits under the proposed section 26 can very well be imagined by men who know the conditions of things in mufassal. And, if, taking help of both these sections, the transferer of an occupancy-raiyati holding instead of making a sale-deed executes apparently a lease describing at the same time his holding either as a permanent tenure or holding at a fixed rate then he will entrench himself behind a double line of defence and effectively evade the provisions of sections 26C, 26D and 26G. There will be then few or no chances or possibility for the landlord to undo the fraudulent transaction. For even if the landlord succeed in establishing that the transfer is in fact of an occupancy-raiyati holding he will be confronted with the lease and the difficulties will be truly insuperable if the bar of section 188 be applicable to such cases. I dissent therefore from the proposal to exclude lease from the category of transfer only in sections 26C, 26D, 26G, 26KK and not at the same time in section 26B and dissent also from the proposal to visit fraudulent misdescription of the interest of an occupancy-raiyat in a transfer deed with a penalty lesser than khas possession or forfeiture. If it is really intended that an occupancy-raiyati holding should be made transferable only on payment of the landlord's transfer fees then certainly there should be no loopholes for perpetration of fraud on law. To provide for landlord's transfer fee will be a poor consolation to the landlords if such a provision be coupled with more than one means of defeating it. All the elaborate provisions of sections 26C, 26D, 26F, 26G will then appear to be nothing but sheer mockery.

Clause 51.—The proposed section 86A offers no solution to the questions of abatement or exemption of rent that arise out of the diluvion of the land of a tenure or holding. The new section settles the law in one clear case only, viz., where the lands are wholly diluviated and the tenant "obtains exemption". But generally difficulty arises not so much in such a case of total diluvion where again the tenant comes and obtains exemption, as in the other cases of partial diluvion or of the tenant's disappearance from the mahal. Take, for instance, a case of partial diluvion where the tenant has accepted remission of rent. In such a case when the land reappears neither the tenant can identify his land which re-emerges often along with the lands of other holdings nor the zamindars can settle the newly formed lands with other tenants lest the original tenant take recourse to the plea of dispossession by landlord in a suit for rent of the undiluviated portion. The proposed section offers no solution in such cases. Neither it will serve any purpose in the case where the lands of a holding are wholly lost by diluvion but the tenant does not come forward to get an exemption. And why will he, when he can defeat any rent suit against him by objecting that when he is not using and occupying the washed lands, he is not liable for any rent? Clause 51 therefore should have been so framed as to cover all these cases which frequently arise in riparian tracts and char areas.

Clause 56.—My next objection is to the proposed amendment of section 93. With the safeguards in the present section removed the co-owners of an estate or tenure will be absolutely at the mercy of the Collector or any of the tenants if the words—

> "in case (i)—(a) the Collector or (b) any one having an interest in the estate or tenure or in any of the estates or tenures; and"

stand as they do in the reported Bill. I cannot therefore agree to such a proposition.

Clause 106.—Clause 106 (section 174A) as framed does not provide for anything happening after the confirmation of sale. Yet it is a fact that in many cases rent decrees end in the smoke of symbolical possession. In the absence of any provisions making the rent decree and sale certificate effective against the sold jamas the difficulty of a decree-holder purchaser really begins with the purchase of the suit lands. As soon as the decree-holder purchases a jama his right to receive rent is extinguished, but he cannot reap any benefits from the lands. He has to face another protracted litigation to bring the lands to his khas possession and surely until and unless he gets the land the decree cannot be taken to be satisfied. To make rent decrees effective therefore I proposed that in clause 106 further provisions be added on the following lines, viz. :—

> "(1) Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Civil Procedure, where a sale is confirmed under section 174 A, the Court shall fix a date to allow the purchasers to deposit in Court the stamp necessary for the preparation of the sale certificate and the process fee for the delivery of possession to the purchaser."
> "(2) When the purchaser has deposited the necessary stamps the Court shall issue a writ in the prescribed form for delivery of possession to the auction purchaser."
> "(3) When the possession has been delivered the Court shall record on the stamp a certificate of sale in the prescribed form containing the details of the tenure or holding sold together with a statement that the possession has been delivered on a certain date, and shall issue a true copy of the certificate to the purchaser. Such copy shall be regarded as the conclusive evidence of purchase and possession between the parties therein stated."
> "(4) If after delivery of possession the judgment-debtor or any person claiming through him, not being a sub-tenant, re-enters on the lands by force within one year of the date of the delivery of possession, the Court may punish him with fine or imprisonment."

But unfortunately my suggestions were considered inadmissible.

Clause 108 needs only one observation, viz., that in Bengal at any rate society is progressing from contract to status.

In conclusion, I desire to touch on a very important point, viz, the question of punctual and regular realisation of rent. In the present measure while it has been proposed to grant further facilities to the tenants for the payments of their rents—facilities which all have welcomed and none has grudged—no serious attempt has been made to solve the difficulties of the landlords in the matter of the realisation of rents. Section 54 says that :—

> "Every tenant shall pay each instalment of rent before sunset of the day on which it falls due."

The provision has no doubt the appearance of a mandate, but what help there is if the mandate is not obeyed as in fact it is not generally obeyed? The cumbrous procedure for rent suits laid down in Chapters XIII and XIV of this Act has grievously failed to make the mandate effective. It has failed—utterly failed—to ensure anything like punctual and regular realization of rent. If it is conceded that litigation brings ruin to both the parties, if it is remembered that rent suits constitute more than fifty per cent. of the total number of suits instituted in Civil Courts, if it is further remembered that after all the tenants have to pay at least the decreed costs of these suits and, lastly, if it is not overlooked that in comparatively small percentage of cases the jamas are ultimately sold or the sales of holdings stand confirmed, certainly a more effective method should have been provided to ensure speedier realization of rent and in all fairness specially when, on the one hand, the whole chapter on distraint is omitted and, on the other, better facilities are given to the tenants for paying up their dues. Section 158A will be availed, if at all, by only a few big landlords, but what help there is for the smaller proprietors and the vast majority of rent receivers, including the small tenure-holders?

When section 66 was under consideration it was proposed so to amend it as to provide that non-payment of rent for three years in succession would entitle the landlords to bring a suit for ejectment and the decree for ejectment should be made final if the arrears are not paid before the execution of the decree or the final order. Such a provision would really have gone a great way to impress on the tenantry the duty of paying rents regularly and at least of paying the arrears of rent within a reasonable period, but as soon as such a proposal was made it was characterised "revolutionary" from Government quarters. If it is not revolutionary to allow raiyats to realise by such a procedure even one year's arrear of rent from the under-raiyats, if it is again not "revolutionary" for the Government as landlord to claim, secure and enforce such a right against a tenant in the position of a raiyat (cf clause 11 of the form of lease for raiyatwari settlements in the Sundarbans of the district of Bakarganj and clause 17 of the form of lease for raiyatwari settlements in the Sundarbans of the districts of 24-Parganas and Khulna—vide pages 12 and 13 and pages 46 47 of the Bengal Waste Lands Manual), how can such an amendment be termed "revolutionary" if it is proposed to be inserted in the interest of the general body of rent receivers, I for myself fail to understand, unless of course any proposal which can possibly have the effect of reducing receipts under the heads of Excise and Court-fees is ipso facto a proposal at once revolutionary and reprehensible. I would therefore dissent from the measure in so far as it suffers from this serious omission and glaring defect also.

RESOLUTION.

Simla, the 15th July 1926.

No. 2058 E.—The Royal Commission of Public Services in India presided over by Viscount Lee of Fareham recommended in regard to the State Railway Superior Services that the extension of the existing training facilities should be pressed forward as expeditiously as possible in order that recruitment in India may be advanced as soon as practicable up to 75 per cent. of the total number of vacancies in the Railway Departments as a whole, the remaining 25 per cent. being recruited in England.

2. With the approval of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India the Government of India have accepted this recommendation and have framed rules regulating recruitment and training in India which are reproduced in Annexures A, B and C to this Resolution.

3. The Superior Railway Services consist of—

(1) The Indian Railway Service of Engineers.

(2) The Superior Revenue Establishment of State Railways, including the following branches :—

(a) Transportation (Traffic),

(b) Transportation (Power),

(c) Mechanical Engineering,

(d) Commercial,

and certain specialist branches.

4. The annexures contain the rules for recruitment and training for the above services except in the case of the Stores Branch, vacancies in which will be filled in future by selection from the Indian Railway Service of Engineers and the Mechanical Engineering Branch of the Superior Revenue Establishment.

5. It has been decided that recruitment in India will be confined to persons of Asiatic domicile and in England to persons of non-Asiatic domicile, with immediate effect in all branches except in the case of the Indian Railway Service of Engineers, where this rule will have effect from 1927 and in the Mechanical Engineering and Transportation (Power) branches where it will have effect from 1933. The reason for this in the two latter cases is that the training requisite extends over seven years, and that it will, therefore, not be until 1933 that the scheme will provide the requisite number of officers.

6. The rules now published will come into force at once, and as soon as the necessary preliminary arrangements have been made dates will be notified by which applications must be submitted for appointment to the various branches.

ORDERED that this Resolution be communicated to the Departments of the Government of India, the Provincial Governments, Minor Local Governments, and the Agents of State and Company Railways noted below :—

Government of India, Home Department.

Government of India, Foreign and Political Department.

The Governments of Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Bombay, Burma, Central Provinces, Madras, United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Delhi Province, and Coorg.

The Agents, North-Western, East Indian, Eastern Bengal, Great Indian Peninsula, Assam-Bengal, Bombay, Baroda and Central India, Bengal-Nagpur, Burma, Madras and Southern Mahratta, Bengal and North-Western, Rohilkhund and Kumaon, and South Indian Railways.

ORDERED also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

P. H. MAFLIN,

Secretary, Railway Board.

The Railway Board will nominate an officer of a local railway to serve as an ex-officio member on each of these Quota Committees, and in provinces or administrations to which States in India have been attached, the Provincial Government or Administration will arrange to see that such States are represented on the Committees through an officer of the Political Department.

The decision of the Quota Committee will be final.

11. Any attempt on the part of a candidate to enlist support for his application through persons of influence will disqualify him for selection. Spontaneous recommendations from persons, who are not themselves acquainted with the candidate's work at school or at the University, or otherwise, will be disregarded.

12. Candidates selected by the Quota Committees will be required to appear for examination before a Medical Board and to obtain a certificate of physical fitness for employment in outdoor service. Candidates disqualified by the Medical Board will not be permitted to appear at the examination.

13. A candidate will be required to pay a fee of Rs. 5 with his application, and a candidate, permitted to appear at the examination, will pay a further fee of Rs. 50.

14. The competitive examination will be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the Governor-General in Council.

15. The syllabus for the examination is detailed in Appendix III.

16. Arrangements for the conduct of the examination will be made by the Public Service Commission.

In subjects, which are common to the competitive examinations for the Indian Railway Service of Engineers and the Transportation (Traffic) and Commercial Departments, candidates for both the examinations will be required to undergo the same examination.

17. Of the total number of vacancies in a year, to be filled in India by direct recruitment, two-thirds will be filled on the results of the competitive examination, provided that number of candidates is declared by the Public Service Commission as having qualified by examination. The remaining one-third vacancies will be reserved by the Government of India to redress, so far as may be necessary, marked communal inequalities, and any appointments, which it may be necessary to make on these grounds, shall be made by the Governor-General in Council, after consultation with the Public Service Commission, by direct nomination from among candidates who have attained the qualifying standard at the examination. Such vacancies among the one-third reserved as may not be required for the redress of communal inequalities, or for which duly qualified candidates for direct nomination may not be forthcoming, shall be filled in the direct order of merit in which the candidates passed the examination.

NOTE.—Certain appointments in the Indian Railway Service of Engineers were formerly guaranteed to the students of some of the Engineering Colleges. The guarantee has for the future been withdrawn, but to protect the interests of the students who were in the Colleges, when the changes were introduced, the guarantee system will be continued until 1929. The number of vacancies in the Indian Railway Service of Engineers to be recruited for under these regulations will up to that year be reduced by the number of appointments guaranteed.

18. A list of the competitors shall be made out in order of merit as disclosed by the aggregate marks finally awarded to each competitor, and in that order so many competitors up to the determined number of appointments, as are found by the Public Service Commission to be qualified by examination, shall be designated to be selected candidates for the Indian Railway Service of Engineers, provided that the Government of India are satisfied that they are duly qualified in other respects. Should any selected candidate become disqualified, the Government of India will determine whether the vacancy thus created shall be filled or not; in the former case, the candidate next in order of merit, and in other respects duly qualified, shall be deemed to be the selected candidate.

If a candidate, having been nominated by the Quota Committee as a candidate for both the Indian Railway Service of Engineers and the Transportation (Traffic) and Commercial Departments, is a selected candidate for both, he shall be treated as a selected candidate for that service or department only for which he expressed a preference at the time of his application.

19. (a) Candidates selected for appointment under Rule 18 will be appointed as probationers on an agreement for three years in the first instance and will, during the period of their probation, draw an allowance of Rs. 300 per mensem in the first year, Rs. 350 in the second year and Rs. 400 in the third year of service, subject to satisfactory reports on their work being received at the end of each year of probation. All the men appointed will, during the period of their probation, be required to undergo practical training of one year on a State Railway, including six months in a Railway Workshop and a further six months on construction or survey, as indicated in Appendix IV.

(b) At the conclusion of the probationary period all probationers who are favourably reported on will be required to undergo a final practical examination, which will include tests in levelling, surveying, practical design and setting out of work, the manufacture and use of materials, analysis of rates, drawing, estimating and riding, and will, if successful, be confirmed in the Indian Railway Service of Engineers on pay of Rs. 475. On confirmation their agreement will be continued subject to their service being terminable on six months' notice on either side.

(c) Candidates, who may in accordance with Rule 17 be appointed by the Government of India by direct nomination, will be appointed on the same conditions as regards pay, training and confirmation as in clauses (a) and (b).

20. Probationers will be required to pass a riding test within two years of appointment.

21. Probationers will be required to pass a language examination in Urdu by the Preliminary Standard, modified to suit the requirements of the Railways, before they can be confirmed or granted any increment, beyond the first, during the period of probation. Probationers whose vernacular is Urdu may be exempted from passing the language examination. Failure to pass the examination within the probationary period involves liability to removal from service.

22. Officers of the Indian Railway Service of Engineers, recruited under these regulations, will not be entitled to pension on quitting the service, but will be eligible throughout their service for the benefits of the State Railway Provident Fund, to which they will be required to subscribe, and by the rules of which Fund they will be required to abide. They will also be eligible for gratuities for good, efficient, faithful and continuous service. A summary of the benefits of the State Railway Provident Fund and the Gratuity Rules will be found in Appendix V.

23. Pay will commence from the date of joining service. Service for increments and seniority will also count from the same date. Particulars as to pay are contained in Appendix VI.

24. Leave rules applicable to State Railway officers are under revision. Officers recruited under these regulations will, pending the revision of the rules, be entitled to leave under the existing rules, but the revised rules will apply to them when they are brought into force.

25. Officers will ordinarily be employed throughout their service on the Railway to which they may be posted on first appointment and will have no claim, as a matter of right, to transfer to some other Railway. But the Government of India reserve the right to transfer such officers, in the exigencies of service, to any other Railway or project in or out of India.

26. Officers recruited for the Indian Railway Service of Engineers in the United Kingdom by the Secretary of State must, as one of the qualifications for their appointment, have undergone at least one full year's practical training before selection, while the officers recruited in India will obtain that training after appointment. In the circumstances officers recruited in the United Kingdom will be given one year's seniority over those recruited in India.

27. The Government of India reserve the right of assigning to the R. E. officers recruited for the Indian Railway Service of Engineers, under the rules laid down by the Secretary of State, and to officers promoted from the subordinate ranks, positions in the seniority list at their discretion.

Of the total number of candidates to be selected, two-thirds will be selected in the strict order of merit awarded by the Public Service Commission, provided that number of candidates is declared by the Public Service Commission as properly qualified for selection. The remaining one-third will be reserved by the Government of India to redress so far as may be necessary marked communal inequalities, and any appointments, which it may be necessary to make on these grounds, shall be made by the Governor General in Council, after consultation with the Public Service Commission, by direct nomination from among candidates who have been declared by the Public Service Commission to have attained the qualifying standard. Such vacancies among the one-third reserved as may not be required for the redress of communal inequalities, or for which duly qualified candidates may not be forthcoming, shall be filled in the direct order of merit awarded to the candidates by the Public Service Commission.

If, at any time during his apprenticeship, an apprentice does not satisfy his superior officers that he is making good progress he will be liable to be discharged from his apprenticeship with a week's notice.

17. The selected candidates will be required to undergo practical and theoretical training in a Railway Workshop for the first three years of their apprenticeship. During this period they will be granted a stipend of Rs. 75 per mensem. At the end of each of the three years the candidates will be examined, and, if unsuccessful, will be discharged from their apprenticeship.

Apprentices to the number of vacancies, for which the selection was made in the first instance, will be selected for a further period of training for two years (see Rule 20), provided they have attaind the qualifying standard, and the others will be discharged from their apprenticeship.

Provided that if at least half the number of the apprentices, selected under Rule 15 to redress communal inequalities, do not become eligible for selection under this rule, the deficiency will be made good by direct selection, the number to be selected according to merit being reduced by the same number; in no case, however, will final selection be made if the apprentice has not attained the qualifying standard.

20. Apprentices selected under Rule 19 will be sent to the United Kingdom to undergo a further period of training for two years, as prescribed in Appendix I. During this period of training in the United Kingdom they will be granted stipend of £250 per annum. They will be granted a free 2nd class passage to the United Kingdom, and during the period of voyage to the United Kingdom, their stipend of Rs. 100 per mensem will be continued.

On confirmation their agreement will be continued, subject to their service being terminable on six months' notice on either side.

23. Probationers will be required to pass a language examination in Urdu by the Preliminary standard, modified to suit the requirements of Railways, before they can be confirmed or granted any increment, beyond the first, during the period of their probation. Probationers whose vernacular is Urdu may be exempted from passing the language examination. Failure to pass the examination involves liability to removal from service.

24. Officers of the Mechanical Engineering and Transportation (Power) departments of the Superior Revenue Establishment of State Railways, recruited under these regulations, will not be entitled to pension on quitting the service, but will be eligible throughout their service for the benefits of the State Railway Provident Fund, to which they will be required to subscribe, and by the rules of which Fund they will be required to abide. They will also be eligible for gratuities for good, efficient, faithful and continuous service. A summary of the benefits of the State Railway Provident Fund and the Gratuity Rules will be found in Appendix II.

THE Bengal and Madras Service Family Pension Fund which is provisionally managed and assisted by Government has for its object the provision of monthly pensions for the maintenance of the widows and children of subscribers and is open, with certain exceptions, to all active and pensioned members of the Uncovenanted Service of Government (except those serving under the Government of Bombay), and to Local Fund servants earning pensions from Government. Some of the special features of the fund are—(1) that widowed daughters incapable of remarriage or children labouring under such mental or bodily infirmities as incapacitate them from earning their livelihood or preclude the possibility of marriage (in case of a daughter) are admitted to its benefits ; and (2) that subscribers to the Widows' and Daughters' branches are entitled to a refund of 30 per cent. of the premia paid, should the nominees predecease them after five years of admission. The second quinquennial valuation of the fund has been completed by the Actuary to the Government of India and his report discloses very favourable results. For forms of application and rules of the Fund apply to the Accountant-General, Central Revenues, Imperial Secretariat Buildings, Calcutta.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Forecast of the Summer Til Crop of Bengal, 1926-27.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1923-24, the area under til in Bengal has represented some 8·2 per cent of the total area under til in British India.]

Character of the Season.—During the early part of the season weather was favourable for field operations generally. Since the middle of March drought and uneven distribution of rainfall have adversely affected the growth over the greater part of the province. On the whole, the season was unfavourable for the crop.

Acreage.—The area sown this year is reported to be 107,500 acres as against 105,600 acres last year.

Outturn.—From the estimates furnished by the District Officers, the average outturn of the crop for the province works out at 68 per cent. of the normal this year as against 64 per cent. last year. Taking the normal yield at 6½ maunds per acre, the gross outturn for the province is estimated at 16,400 tons this year against 15,200 tons last year, or an increase of about 8 per cent.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2746L., dated Calcutta, the 7th August, 1926.—The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Cattle Bill, 1926, with the Bill, as amended by the Committee, is hereby published for general information :—

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE BENGAL CATTLE BILL, 1926.

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee, to which the Bill to provide for the protection of cattle in Bengal was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted at the end of this paragraph, and have the honour to submit this, our report, with the Bill, as amended by us annexed thereto. In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have, so far as possible, been underlined.

Paper No. 1.

(1) Letter No. D/B.I.P/569, dated the 25th January, 1926, from Dr. H. W. B. Moreno, M.L.C., Honorary Secretary, the British Indian Peoples' Association.

(2) Letter, dated the 26th January, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, Bengal Mahajan Sabha.

(3) Letter, dated the 30th January, 1926, from the Assistant Secretary, Marwari Trades Association.

(4) Letter No. 7105, dated the 30th January, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, the All-India Cow Conference Association.

(5) Letter, dated the 1st February, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, Bengal Landholders' Association.

(6) Letter No. 23, dated the 8th February, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, Marwari Association.

(7) Letter No. 4442, dated the 15th February, 1926, from the General Secretary, European Association.

Paper No. 2.

(1) Letter No. 166/F-4, dated the 10th March, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, Bengal National Chamber of Commerce.

(2) Letter, dated the 12th April, 1926, from the Secretary, Indian Association.

2 The more important changes we have made in the Bill are as follows:—

Clause 2.—We have simplified the definition of "Brahmini bull".

The Select Committee experienced some difficulty in finding a complete definition of the term "epizootic disease". They, therefore, came to the decision that instead of defining the term, a more satisfactory solution would be to give power to the Local Government to declare from time to time what is an infectious or contagious disease within the meaning of the Act. They have, accordingly, inserted a new clause 2A to give effect to this decision. We have omitted the definition of "cattle" as being unnecessary.

We have omitted the definition of "Khodai bull" as it appears doubtful whether such bulls really exist. The Muhammadan members of the Select Committee were unanimous in denying that there were bulls of this nomenclature anywhere in Bengal or that any practice existed among Muhammadans of dedicating bulls similar to the Hindu practice in the case of Brahmini bulls.

We have omitted the definition of "local authority" as it is provided for in the Bengal General Clauses Act, 1899.

The definition of the word "Notification" is also unnecessary as where the word occurs there is no doubt as to its meaning.

Clause 3.—We have redrafted clause 3 to make the intention clear.

We have also provided that the imprisonment for offences under this clause shall be simple and not rigorous.

Clause 4.—The Committee decided that it would not be right to punish a man under the provisions of this clause who commits the acts mentioned therein in ignorance of the fact that the bull was a Brahmini bull. The clause has been altered to give effect to this decision.

The penalties under this clause have also been appreciably reduced.

The clause has been further modified so as to make it clear that the bull may be destroyed only when it is found to be dangerous to human life and not to property and, further, only when, in the opinion of the competent Police officer, it is not possible to remove the bull to a pound.

Clauses 5 and 8.—We have redrafted sub-clause (1) of clause 5 so as to provide that the order of the Local Government prescribing the minimum number of stud-bulls that a local authority shall maintain may only be passed after considering the views of the local authority. This provision originally occurred in clause 8, which we have excised in consequence.

The majority of the Committee decided to omit from sub-clause (2) of clause 5 the provision requiring a local authority to earmark for the purchase of stud-bulls one-fourth of all monies received under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, as they considered that, having made it lawful in this clause for local authorities generally to apply their funds for this purpose, it appeared to be against the principles of local self-government to interfere with their discretion in the matter.

Clause 6.—We have sub-divided this clause into two sub-clauses and omitted " Khodai bulls " as being consequential on the omission of this expression in an earlier part of the Bill.

Clause 7.—The amendments made in this clause are more or less of a drafting character.

Clause 8.—This clause has been omitted—vide the remarks under clause 5.

Clause 9.—We have added a provision in sub-clause (2) of this clause providing for the publication of rules made under the clause in newspapers as well.

3. The Bill was published in English in the Calcutta Gazette of the 17th December, 1925.

4. We do not consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

5. We recommend that the Bill, as amended by us, be passed.

Minute of Dissent by the Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Nawab Ali Chaudhuri, Khan Bahadur, M.L.C.

The present time is most inopportune for considering any enactment (vide clause 4) which contemplates taking power over Brahmini bulls. On the other hand, if the clause relating to the special protection of Brahmini bulls is left out of the Bill, no provision of any importance would be left in it. Local authorities have already power to maintain stud bulls, and Government's taking power to prescribe a minimum number of stud bulls which the local authorities should be required to maintain would be an undue interference with their discretion.

Joint Minute of Dissent by Babu Tarit Bhushan Roy, M.L.C., Rai Abinash Chandra Banerjee Bahadur, M.L.C., Mr. K. C. Ray Chaudhuri, M.L.C., Babu Jatindra Nath Basu, M.L.C., and Babu Debi Prosad Khaitan, M.L.C.

The question of preservation of cattle is one of paramount importance for this province. There has been considerable deterioration of cattle, and consequent diminution of wealth. It has been generally felt that organised steps are necessary for the improvement of cattle of the province.

One of the main factors in the improvement of cattle is a sufficient supply of stud bulls. At present the supply is limited. The people have to depend upon bulls which the Hindus dedicate to some Hindu deity and the Muhammadans to Khoda. Ordinarily, no specific name is applied to these bulls, but some call them Brahmini bulls or Khodai bulls.

The preservation of the bulls so dedicated is a necessity. The present measure is intended to meet that need.

In clause 4, sub-clause (1), we are of opinion that the insertion of the words " knowing or having reason to believe that a bull is a Brahmini bull " materially takes away from the effect of the provision intended to be incorporated in this sub-clause. The Brahmini bulls are well known to villagers, and they are not likely to be in any doubt as to which of the village bulls are Brahmini bulls. The insertion of the above qualifying provision provides a loop-hole for a defence in all complaints that may be made in the matter of the slaughter or maiming of a Brahmini bull. We think the qualifying provision should be removed.

We are of opinion that sub-clause (2) of clause 4 should be deleted. A bull that is really dangerous to human life may be removed to the nearest pound to be dealt with as other pound cattle, after it has been duly ascertained that the bull is in fact a danger to human life. A quiet bull may be so goaded as to be dangerous. This sub-clause may be a fruitful source of communal disputes if Police officers are permitted at their descretion to have Brahmini bulls killed in the villages, as the religious feelings of the Hindus will be greatly hurt thereby. In none of the existing Acts is there any provision for the slaughter of a sacred bull. It is better that the present Bill whose primary object is to protect Brahmini bulls should not pass into law, rather than a provision about the killing of sacred bulls dedicated by the Hindus should be a part of the Bill.

Joint Minute of Dissent by Mr. B. Chakravarti, M.L.C., Babu Charu Chandra Das, M.L.C., and Babu Surendra Nath Roy, M.L.C.

We approve of the provisions of the Bengal Cattle Bill as amended by the Select Committee, except the provisions as regards the destruction of Brahmini bulls. In our opinion the said bulls, even when dangerous, should not be destroyed, but should be kept in proper custody or may be sent to some such institution as the Pinjrapole.

Minute of Dissent by Rai Harendranath Chaudhuri, M.L.C.

I am sorry I cannot agree with the majority of the Select Committee, firstly, in reducing the penalties provided for in clause 4 of the Bill and, secondly, in retaining sub-clause (2) of clause 4 even in the amended form The reduced penalty will not, I believe, have sufficient deterrent effect. In the case of private property, cattle-lifting comes under section 379, Indian Penal Code—a section which provides for a maximum punishment of imprisonment of either description for 3 years, or fine or both. Section 428, Indian Penal Code, provides that mischief by killing, poisoning, maiming or rendering useless any animal of the value of Rs. 10 may be punished with imprisonment of either description for 2 years or fine or both, and if such mischief is done in respect of a camel or horse or any animal of the value of rupees fifty or upwards, then section 429 provides for a punishment of imprisonment of either description for five years or fine or both. In spite of such provisions, the Courts have not generally failed to measure and mete out proper punishment in cases of theft of, or mischief done to, cattle belonging to private persons. There is no reason, therefore, why, if at all the Brahmini bulls have to be protected, the maximum penalties contemplated in the original Bill should be reduced, the discretion of the Court specially fettered, and the maximum penalty for killing and poisoning a Brahmini bull particularly limited to imprisonment for three months or fine of fifty rupees, specially when in many cases the price of a good Brahmini bull, fit to be used as a stud bull, may be much more than fifty rupees. It has just been published that the Government propose to amend the Bengal Cruelty to Animals Act, 1920, by providing inter alia for a maximum penalty of fifty rupees for working buffaloes during prohibited periods. Certainly the two offences cannot be placed under the same category.

As regards sub-clause (2) of clause 4, it is manifestly inconsistent with the very object of the Bill which is declared to be the protection of cattle. Moreover, it can come into operation only in exceedingly rare cases and hence, in my humble opinion, such a provision is not really called for.

Minute of Dissent by Babu Amulya Dhone Addy, M.L.C.

I approve of the provisions of the Bengal Cattle Bill as amended by the Select Committee, with the following exception, viz., sub-clause 2 of clause 4 should be omitted on the following grounds :—

The corresponding clause of the Bill, which is the proviso to clause 4, has been strongly objected to by the Bengal Mahajan Sabha, the Marwari Association, the Indian Association and the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce. All of them are strongly opposed to the destruction of a Brahmini bull.

I admit that under the Bill as modified by the Select Committee it is only that bull may be destroyed which is found to be dangerous to human life and which, in the opinion of a competent Police officer is not possible to be removed to a pound, but I do not approve even of a competent Police officer being authorised to destroy a Brahmini bull, even if he be dangerous to human life. No good purpose will be served by his reporting to the local authority concerned after destroying the bull. In my opinion, the bull should not be destroyed, but kept in proper custody, and it should be the duty of the local authority to arrange for this on receipt of information. The bull may be removed to the nearest pound or some institution like the Pinjrapole. The destruction of a Brahmini bull, however ferocious he may be, is repugnant to the sentiments of the Hindus, and I am strongly opposed to any legislation under which the religious feelings of the Hindus may be wounded.

Minute of Dissent by Mr. P. N. Guha, M.L.C.

This Bill is not only unnecessary, but I am positively of opinion that if passed into law will create a source of serious trouble in the country. Brahmini bulls are now in abundance all over the country and they are being worshipped and protected with the help of the spontaneous good will of the Hindus and Mussalmans. We have heard of various causes for quarrel between the two communities, but so far not any in connection with the movements of Brahmini bulls. Mussalmans kill cows and bulls, but I have never known a single instance in which any Mussalman ever took it into his head to kill a Brahmini bull. Therefore, no legislative measure to give them protection is necessary. No case has ever been made out to justify such legislation, and one wonders why the legislators should go out of their way to disturb the existing state of things which is satisfactory. Provisions with regard to the Brahmini bulls if passed into law will place a most dangerous weapon in the hands of the mischievous people to make the feelings between the Hindus and Mussalmans worse still. I, therefore, think all references to the Brahmini bulls should be expunged from the Bill.

As to the remaining provisions of maintaining stud bulls, they are unnecessary. The existing laws which govern the administration of Municipalities, District, Local and Union Boards have given sufficient powers to the local bodies in this direction. Where then is the necessity of enacting a further provision?

I think the entire Bill is unnecessary, and it should not be passed.

Minute of Dissent by Mr. D. J. Cohen, M.L.C.

Clause 4 (1) in my opinion should be restricted to those who commit the acts mentioned in the said clause without sufficient justification, leaving the onus on them to prove such justification.

Minute of Dissent by Rai Badridas Goenka Bahadur, M.L.C.

I object to the retention of sub-clause (2) in clause 4. I believe that the very purpose of the Bill will be defeated if there is any provision in it authorising anyone, whoever he may be, to kill a Brahmini bull under any circumstances. It is inconceivable that a bull can be positively dangerous to human life and that it cannot be removed to the nearest pound.

Minute of Dissent by Khan Bahadur Kazi Zahirul Haq, M.L.C.

I do not find any justification for this Bill in its present form. It is defective, vague and inconsistent, and is at the same time wrong in principle. Both from the preamble and the statement of objects and reasons, it is evident that legislation is sought in the main for the protection and maintenance of Brahmini bulls by local authorities for the purpose of providing improved means for cattle-breeding. In that case, it would have been enough to authorise such local bodies to take possession of the Brahmini bulls and bring them up properly for serving as stud bulls and thereby indirectly fulfilling the intention of the dedicator, viz., public benefit. But in the clauses furnishing details the main object appears to have been lost sight of and only a permissive clause (6) is appended for taking possession of some Brahmini bulls by the local authorities; and the whole force of the contemplated Act is brought to bear upon the protection of stray and rowdy bulls, which according to expert opinion are no good for breeding purposes, but on the contrary form a permanent sources of public nuisance causing destruction to property and sometimes even to life; and yet no provision is made for their being taken into custody and thereby giving protection to the public against their depredations.

The penalty clause is again an encroachment upon the private rights of persons. A furious bull enters the house or the crop-field of a villager and carries on depredations in it; the owner tries to turn it out by brandishing a lathi; the bull instead of running away, as often actually happens, turns upon him and makes an onslaught. The poor fellow dare not use his lathi for fear of the law. He is only permitted to run to the thana for giving information, and in the meantime allowing his house and crop to be destroyed, without the least prospect of his being compensated for the loss; for the bull has no master and is also protected by law. But if a thief or a gang of dacoits enters the house of a person and tries to carry away or destroy property by force or intimidation, the established law of the country allows him full liberty to injure or even kill a man under such circumstances in self-defence. A rowdy bull is thus given a superior position to a human being.

The Hindus, no doubt, regard Brahmini bulls as sacred. The duty of the dedicators, therefore, clearly is, that they should make some provision for their maintenance, instead of letting them loose to fall upon shops, crop-fields and men in search of food, and thus turning a virtuous act into a source of public disturbance; or let the matter be made the subject of a comprehensive scheme by Government, as suggested by the European Association (vide paper I relating to the Bill under discussion)

There is one other thing which must be pointed out here—who is to take the initiative in enforcing the law, specially the penalty clause of it? The dedicator cannot; for as soon as an animal is dedicated, his ownership is gone, he cannot claim it back. Is it justifiable then to spend public money upon an object which is of no utility to the public? A member of a certain community builds a house of worship, but makes no provision for its maintenance. Does it become incumbent upon Government to preserve it?

As for the so-called Khodai bulls, such dedications are very rare among Moslems, and even when they are made by them, they do so in the name of God, as the very name suggests, not to the public; and they make no grievance of it, when such a bull is killed by Moslems for food. The Bengal National Chamber of Commerce brings an unwarranted charge that bulls are often slaughtered by Muhammadans in the mufassal. The Chamber obviously means the Brahmini bulls; but it ought to know that an animal dedicated to anyone except God becomes unclean according to Muhammadan law, and, therefore, Moslems cannot use it for food. If they kill any bulls, they kill Khodai bulls, for which no grievance is made by the Moslem public.

For the above stated reasons and many others, the passing of such a Bill is bound "to create a certain amount of discontent," as the Indian Association justly remarks, in that it is an attempt to extend unjustifiable protection of law by providing for severe punishments for its breach, to an animal, which, however sacred it may be to the Hindus, is undoubtedly a public nuisance, so long as it is allowed to roam about unchecked and destroy other people's property with impunity.

Minute of Dissent by Maulvi Sayyed Sultan Ali, M.L.C.

I cannot agree with the majority view of the Select Committee. I oppose the provisions of the Bill regarding the protection of Brahmini bulls, on the following grounds:—

(1) The Brahmini bulls are almost always dangerous to human beings. In spite of that, clause 4 takes away from men that right of private defence against the Brahmini bulls which they have got against men. Clause 4 (2) is entirely ineffective, because Hindu officers cannot be compelled to kill a Brahmini bull in inviolation of their religious sentiments and the Mussalman officer will not venture to kill it for fear of being put into trouble by Hindus.

(2) The bulls will always damage valuable crops which, in these hard days, no man can tolerate. But none has been made liable for such damages. In ordinary cases, the owners of cattle are liable for damages.

(3) When any Brahmini bull will have to be put in any pound, the pound-keeper will not accept it, as none will be liable to pay his fees. Even if he accepts it, he will not be able to sell it, as there is no provision to that effect. And even if he be empowered to sell it, the character of the bull ceases as soon as it is purchased by the auction-purchaser. Moreover, if a Mussalman purchases it and uses it for consumption, it will be quite inconsistent with the intentions of the dedicator.

(4) Opinion expressed in connection with the Bill shows that Brahmini bulls are not suitable for the purpose of breeding.

(5) Clause 3 of the Bill will cause unnecessary hardship and litigation to the ignorant masses, as they are not expected to detect disease.

Minute of Dissent by Maulvi Tayebuddin Ahmed, M. L. C.

I am of opinion that the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, if given effect to, will certainly curtail the fundamental rights of people and will not surely serve any corresponding useful purpose. The Bill is intended for the protection and maintenance of breeding bulls, but no provision whatever has been made in the Bill for the maintenance and custody of the Brahmini bulls. The dedicated bull will have no owner, and difficulties will arise when the bull will go on damaging peoples' crops. The power given to the Police officer in clause 4 is quite insufficient. So, on principle, I am opposed to the Bill. I hold that unless the dedicator is made responsible for the custody and maintenance of Brahmini bulls, it will be too dangerous to declare the bulls sacred as the Bill contemplates. It must be distinctly provided that if a Bahmini bull be once dealt with according to the Cattle Trespass Act and sold in auction, it should cease to be a Brahmini bull, and should become the property of the auction-purchaser. For these and other vital reasons I hold that the Bill be dropped altogether. There are other matters which I reserve my right to move in the Council.

Minute of Dissent by Dr. H. W. B. Moreno, M. L. C.

I think some complete definition should be given in the Bill of the term "epizootic disease". I think also that some definite proportion of the monies received from the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, should be devoted to the purchase and maintenance of stud bulls.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2747L., dated Calcutta, the 7th August 1926.—The following report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Port (Amendment No. II) Bill, 1926, with the Bill, as amended by the Committee, is hereby published for general information :—

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE CALCUTTA PORT (AMENDMENT No. II) BILL, 1926.

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee, to which the Bill further to amend the Calcutta Port Act, 1890, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted at the end of this paragraph, and have the honour to submit this, our report, with the Bill, as amended by us annexed hereto. In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have, so far as possible, been underlined.

Papers No. 1.

(1) Letter No. 1470-1926, dated the 28th May, 1926, from the Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce.

(2) Letter No. 902/116-22, dated the 31st May, 1926, from the Secretary, Indian Mining Federation.

(3) Letter No. 673 G., dated the 7th June, 1926, from the Chairman, Howrah Municipality.

Paper No. 2.

Letter No. 6137, dated the 14th June, 1926, from the Chairman of the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta.

Papers No. 3.

(1) Letter No. 100, dated the 15th June, 1926, from the Honorary Secretary, Marwari Association.

(2) Letter, dated the 19th June, 1926, from the Marwari Chamber of Commerce.

Papers No. 4.

(1) Letter No. 2 B.C.M. 5, dated the 1st July, 1926, from the Calcutta Trades Association.

(2) Letter No. S. 1978, dated the 2nd July, 1926, from the Officiating Chief Executive Officer of the Corporation of Calcutta.

2. Clause 3.—The ideal aimed at in the Bill as introduced was that the Indian mercantile community should be represented by a single body representative of all Indian mercantile interests. The majority of the Committee were, however, of opinion that, while this was sound in principle, there were practical difficulties in giving effect to it at the present juncture. In other words, the Committee were doubtful whether the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, who were mentioned in the Bill as introduced, was as representative a body as its European confrère, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce. When this doubt was raised in Committee, a proposal was put forward to go back to the present law whereby the Government would be given the power to nominate, instead of one member, four members from bodies or associations who, in the opinion of the Government, best represented the Indian mercantile community.

Ultimately, however, the majority of the Committee decided that Indian mercantile interests would best be served if three Commissioners from the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce and one from the Indian Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, were provided.

The other changes in the Bill are entirely of a drafting nature, to make the intention clear.

3. The Bill was published in English in the Calcutta Gazette of the 20th May, 1926.

4. We do not consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

5. We recommend that the Bill, as amended by us, be passed.

Joint Minute of Dissent by Mr. R. B. Wilson, M.L.C., and Sir Abd-ur-Rahim, K.C.S.I., M.L.C.

Clause 3 [proposed sub-section (1) of section 6].—In our opinion the interests of the Indian mercantile community will be best served, under present conditions, if instead of the election of three by the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce and one by the Indian Chamber of Commerce the wording of the present Act is merely amended to permit of four Commissioners being elected by such body or bodies as the Local Government shall from time to time select as best representing the interests of the Indian mercantile community.

Minute of Dissent by Babu Debi Prosad Khaitan, M.L.C.

I am of the opinion that sufficient representation has not been given to the Indian mercantile community under the Bill. I am further of opinion that the Indian Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, have not been given sufficient representation.

Minute of Dissent by Mr. K. C. Ray Chaudhuri, M.L.C.

From the facts and figures placed before the Select Committee and from the discussion about the comparative merits of the two Indian bodies of Commerce (one, a very young but highly democratic Chamber handling a very large proportion of business passing through the port, and the other an old established but highly conservative and somewhat exclusive institution) as to which of them is the most representative Indian Chamber of Commerce from the point of view of export and import trade, I have formed my opinion that instead of the Legislature specifying the name or names of bodies who are to elect from among their members four Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, the Government should be given power to frame such rules as would insure the representation of the most representative commercial organisation on the International principle laid down in paragraph 3 of Article 389 of Part XIII (Labour) of the Treaty of Versailles which has set up the Permanent International Labour Organisation, and which is quoted here in full for easy reference :—

"The members (of the League of Nations which automatically become the members of the International Labour Organisation) undertake to nominate non-Government delegates and advisers CHOSEN IN AGREEMENT WITH the industrial organisations, if such organisations exist, which are most representative of employers or work-people, as the case may be, in their respective countries."

Minute of Dissent by Mr. Tarit Bhushan Roy, M.L.C.

The primary object for which the Calcutta Port (Amendment No. II) Bill of 1926 has been introduced is to increase the number of representatives of Indian Commerce in the Calcutta Port Commission. Since 1890 it is the Local Government which has exercised the right to select the body or bodies or firms as best representing the interests of the native mercantile community for electing 1 out of 9 elected Commissioners as provided for in section 6, clause (1), of the Calcutta Port Act, 1890. The European commercial and trading interests have been represented throughout by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and the Calcutta Trades Association under the above Act, No. III of 1890, and the Amending Bengal Act, No. IV of 1905. The Local Government used to select the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce as the body best representing native mercantile interests for obvious reasons, as they were then the only Association in existence. Section 6 of Act No. III of 1890 was not amended but remained intact in 1905, although the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce insisted upon a statutory right being conferred upon them for returning the representative of the Indian mercantile community. It is quite clear that the Local Government did not concede the demands of the National Chamber, as they realised that trade and commerce were fast developing and expanding. The Bengal Mahajan Sabha and the Marwari Association then came into existence and became recognised by the Local Government. These three recognised mercantile bodies all claimed representation on the Calcutta Port Commission. This was not practicable, unless and until the Act was amended so as to increase the number of representatives. It ought to be noted that another Chamber of Commerce has been founded very recently in Calcutta. They claim that they are a far more representative body than the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce. The Bengal Mahajan Sabha have contested the representative character of the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, which is not at all an expansive body and that its doors are closed to many. It is a fact that the number of its members has gone down. In the Bill as framed all the four seats were allotted to the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce. The claims of the Bengal Mahajan Sabha have been ignored. The Indian Chamber of Commerce—another recent rival of the National Chamber—has been given a slice by the Select Committee, who have reserved the lion's share, viz., 3 seats, for the latter.

It is clear that the above two bodies do not and cannot pretend to represent Indian trading interests. It is a well-known fact that the inland trade is controlled by the Bengal Mahajan Sabha and that its members contribute very largely from day to day to the revenues of the Calcutta Port Trust. Their connection with the Port Trust is intimate and enduring. It is eminently desirable that the claims of Indian Trade should be recognised and one seat on the Port Commission allotted to the Bengal Mahajan Sabha. It is not at all fair that for its age so many as three seats should be allotted to the National Chamber of Commerce. In fact, this body represents more the Banking than the Commercial interests of Calcutta.

It ought to be seriously considered whether it should be left to the Local Government to select the bodies entitled to elect the four Indian representatives in the Port Commission.

2. The more important changes we have made in the Bill are as follows :—

Clause 2.—We have omitted the definition of the expression " land at the disposal of Government " as the expression occurs nowhere in the Bill as amended by us.

We have inserted a definition of " local authority " to provide that, in the case of municipalities, the local authority shall be the Municipal Commissioners and in the case of any union, the Union Board.

The reason for clause 2 (2) (iii) is to provide for the appointment of a local authority in the case of areas where none exists at present, e.g., the Darjeeling district and the Chittagong Hill Tracts. In the case of Local Board areas no doubt the Government will appoint the Local Board.

We have added considerably to the definition of " cattle " in clause 2 (1).

We have supplied an omission by defining the expression " pasture land " which is frequently used in the Bill.

Clause 3.—We have inserted a provision empowering the Local Government to set apart lands in their possession as pasture lands.

Clauses 4 to 11.—These clauses, which occur in the Bill as introduced, reproduced, with certain modifications, the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 The Committee are of opinion that nothing is to be gained by deviating in the Bill even slightly from the well-known and well-recognised procedure of the Land Acquisition Act. They have, therefore, omitted these clauses and inserted a single clause providing that the procedure of the Land Acquisition Act shall apply in the acquisition of all pasture lands under the Bill.

Clause 12.—The changes made in this clause are more or less of a drafting character to make the intention clear.

Clause 13.—We have re-drafted this clause so as to leave the imposition of the " pasture cess " to the local authority subject to the control of the Local Government as to its assessment, maximum rate, and collection. We have, however, provided that the amount levied shall be that required for the purposes of the Act (subject to the maximum fixed by Government).

Clause 14.—The Committee decided that it was wrong in principle to allocate moneys realized under the provisions of another enactment for the purposes of an enactment of a totally different character and have, therefore, omitted this clause which provided for the allocation of the sums forfeited under section 180 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, for the purpose of acquiring pasture lands.

Chapter III—Clauses 15—22.—The Committee have omitted the whole of this Chapter as being impracticable and as likely to lead to a considerable mass of vexatious litigation.

Clauses 23 and 24.—The Committee considered it unwise and unnecessary to set up a new authority for the purposes of the maintenance and management of pasture lands and have omitted these two provisions which provided in the Bill as introduced for the appointment of Village Boards for this purpose.

Clauses 25 and 26.—The changes in these clauses are more or less of a verbal character to make the intention clear.

Clause 27.—This clause has become unnecessary owing to the disappearance of the Village Board Moreover, the form of keeping an account of grazing fees will be dealt with by rules made under clause 40 (1).

Clause 28.—The changes made in this clause are purely drafting changes.

Clause 29.—We have re-drafted this clause to give power to a local authority, with the approval of the Local Government, to make by-laws governing the grazing of cattle on pasture lands We have also provided for necessary penalties in the case of breach of those by-laws.

Clause 30.—The Committee decided that the provision for the auction of fodder crops to the highest bidder, as it stood in the Bill as originally introduced, would be open to abuse and would tend to give the rich man an undue advantage over the poor man. They have accordingly re-drafted this clause leaving the disposal of fodder crops to rules to be made by the Local Government. In this way, it may be made possible for all persons of the locality to purchase such crops at a reasonable rate, without any serious loss to the local authority.

Clause 31.—The clause has been re-drafted to make the intention clear.

Clause 32.—This clause has become unnecessary, vide the provisions of clause 25.

Chapter V—Clause 33.—Clause 33 has been omitted as the Committee thought it unwise to interfere with the Indian Forest Act, 1878, and the rules made thereunder, which dealt completely with forests Moreover, a provision exists in section 27 of the Indian Forest Act, 1878, whereby the Local Government are empowered to frame rules with a view to the use of village forests for the purposes of pasture.

Clause 35.—The Subdivisional Officer has been eliminated from this clause and in his place has been substituted, in the case of Union and Local Boards, the District Board, and in the case of other local authorities, the Commissioner of the Division.

Clause 36.—The changes in this clause are mainly consequential on the changes made in clause 35.

Clause 37.—We have subdivided this clause into two sub-clauses and have supplied an omission as to the manner in which the record of pasture lands prepared by revenue-officers shall be published.

We have also omitted the provision for publication of copies of the register in the Calcutta Gazette, as it is considered that this would increase the bulk of the Gazette to an enormous extent, and also greatly increase the cost of printing.

Clause 38.—The changes in this clause are confined to changes of a consequential and drafting character, except that an omission has been supplied by the insertion of a provision in sub-clause (3) providing for the restoration to the proper authority of pasture lands which have been encroached upon, at the expense of the person convicted.

Clause 39.—The provisions of old clause 39, which occur in the Bill as introduced, appear to the Committee to be unnecessary.

They have, however, substituted a new clause 39 making a very desirable provision whereby all fines realized under the Act shall be credited to the funds of the respective local authorities concerned.

Clause 40.—The amendments made in this clause are mainly consequential on additions or changes made in the earlier provisions of the Bill.

3. The Bill was published in English in the Calcutta Gazette of the 27th August, 1925, and was republished in the Calcutta Gazette of the 17th December, 1925, for public opinion.

4. We consider that the Bill has not been so altered as to require republication.

5 We recommend that the Bill, as amended by us, be passed.

Minute of Dissent by the Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Nawab Ali Chaudhuri, Khan Bahadur.

The Bill as modified by the Select Committee merely reduces itself to a provision for empowering local authorities to impose a pasture cess; but although the local authorities are themselves chiefly concerned in the matter, their opinions have not been specifically taken as to the necessity for or desirability of such a Bill. It is very unlikely that any of the local authorities will take advantage of the provision of such an enactment to impose a cess, and the enactment is therefore likely to remain a dead-letter.

In my opinion the Bill in its present state should not be proceeded with.

Minute of Dissent by Babu Amulya Dhone Addy, M.L.C.

I admit that the Bill has been materially improved by the Select Committee after due consideration of the various objections and suggestions submitted by the several public bodies to which it was referred for opinion, but necessary provision does not appear to have been made in the Bill for the acquisition of adequate plots of lands for pasture grounds.

I also admit that under Clause 13 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, the local authority may impose a tax to meet the expenditure in respect of acquisition and maintenance of pasture lands, but the said tax will fall generally on poor cultivators whose taxable capacity is limited.

If the said tax is levied on agricultural lands, it will be an encroachment on the permanent settlement. If it be on lands and buildings in municipal areas, it will be a source of great oppression on owners and occupiers thereof as they are already over-burdened with taxation by the local authorities.

The British Indian Association, the East Bengal Landholders Association, the Indian Association, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and the European Association are of opinion that this taxation will cause great hardship to owners of lands and buildings. That is the reason as to why the Cow Preservation League, the object of which is the preservation of bullocks and cows of Bengal, is of opinion that provision should be made in the Bill so that the Local Government may be under statutory obligation to contribute suitable sums every year to the local authorities for the provisions of pasture grounds. I do therefore suggest for the favourable consideration of the Council and specially of the Government that the following clause be provided in the Bill.

"The Local Government shall make such annual contribution as may be considered necessary for the purpose of acquiring and maintaining pasture lands and distribute the sum amongst the local authorities in accordance with their requirements."

As by the preservation of bullocks and cows it is not only the villagers but all the people of Bengal will be benefited by the reduction of prices of food-grains due to development of agriculture and reduction of infant-mortality due to increment in the supply of cows' milk, half the cost of acquisition and maintenance of pasture lands should be met by the Local Government and the other half by the local authorities.

Minute of Dissent by Mr. P. N. Guha, M.L.C.

Clause 13.—I am definitely of opinion that the people of the villages in Bengal are not in a position to bear the burden of any further taxation in any shape and consequently the provision of taxation made in Clause 13 (1) of the Bill will be greatly resented all over the Province. The resources of the District Boards, Municipalities and Union Boards should be considered sufficient to maintain pasture lands for the benefit of the cattle. It has been made clear that the intention of the Government of Bengal is to establish a net-work of Union Boards throughout the Province and there is not the least doubt that the pasture lands in the villages all over Bengal will ultimately come under the control of these Union Boards. It should be remembered that the Union Boards have been given sufficient powers to tax the villagers and these Boards should be in a position to maintain pasture lands out of its ordinary resources. The fact should not be overlooked that it is the village people on whom the burden of all taxation is placed. Every raiyat now pays his quota of the salt tax and enhanced price of the postage brought into existence by the Imperial Government. He further pays the road cess and chaukidari tax or the tax imposed by the Union Boards of the Province and if I am not mistaken he will in the very near future have to pay the educational cess. A further tax for pasture land over and above all these will probably be the last straw to break the poor raiyat's back. I therefore take very strong exception with regard to the provision of Clause 13 and recommend that the provision of taxation be removed.

Clause 25.—It is simply preposterous that the raiyat shall not only pay pasture cess but shall in addition have to pay grazing fee. I hold that the local authorities should make it their business to maintain pasture lands in every village and allow the cattle belonging to the villagers to graze free of all charges. I am therefore opposed to the provision of Clause 25.

Clause 29 (2), (3).—Those who know the condition of the villages of Bengal and the nature of the people who ordinarily live there will agree with me in thinking that the provisions of these sub-clauses will create a further source of trouble in villages. Intervention of criminal courts is extremely undesirable and I think the enforcement of by-laws can safely be left with the Union Boards which have powers to deal with village disputes. These clauses should be removed.

Clause 38.—Here again the settlement of the disputes should be left with the Union Boards with provisions of appeal to civil courts. Criminal courts should come in no where in the Act.

Minute of Dissent by Dr. H. W. B. Moreno, M.L.C.

I think Chapter III (Clauses 15-22), somewhat amended, should be included in the Bill. If there be no provision laid down in the Bill for the recovery of pasture lands, what is to prevent, zamindar or tenant, from encroaching on such lands in the future, after they have been declared as such.

First Forecast of the Sugarcane Crop of Bengal, 1926-27.

(NOTE—On an average of the five years ending 1924-25, the area under Sugarcane in Bengal has represented some 7·6 per cent of the total area under Sugarcane in British India)

Character of the Season.—The weather at the outset was generally favourable during the planting time. The growth of the plants was subsequently retarded in a number of districts, especially in West Bengal and Mymensingh owing to insufficient rain. The monsoon showers have, however, revived the prospects generally. The present outlook is, on the whole, satisfactory.

Area planted.—The total area planted with sugarcane for the Province is reported to be 203,100 acres this year against 212,500 acres reported both in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

First Forecast of the Cotton Crops of Bengal, 1926-27.

(NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1924-25, the area under the Cotton crops in Bengal has represented some 0·2 per cent. of the total area under cotton in India.)

THERE are two crops—early and late. The "early" crop is chiefly grown in the Chittagong Hill Tracts and in the Tripura State, and to a small extent in other districts. The "late" crop is grown in Bankura and Midnapore. As the late crop has not yet been sown, this forecast deals only with the "early" crop.

Character of the season.—Owing to untoward conditions, the weather at sowing time was not favourable. In the month of June, however, moderate rain somewhat improved the prospects, but recent heavy showers have proved injurious, and the present condition may be rated as fair, on the whole.

Area sown.—The area sown is reported to be 163, 161 acres this year as against 75,257 acres reported in the corresponding forecast of last year. The apparent increase in area this year is due to revision of estimates in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

RESOLUTION REVIEWING THE TRIENNIAL REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE REGISTRATION DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEARS 1923, 1924 AND 1925.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

Registration.

CALCUTTA, THE 30TH JULY 1926.

RESOLUTION—No. 1402 Regn.

READ—

The Triennial Report on the Administration of the Registration Department for the years 1923, 1924 and 1925.

Khan Bahadur Amin-ul-Islam was in charge of the Registration Department throughout the triennium except for short periods during which he was on deputation as a Member of the Council of State. Rai Bahadur J. N. Ray, late Personal Assistant to the Inspector-General of Registration, held charge of the Department on those occasions.

2. With a view to retrenchment the post of the Personal Assistant to the Inspector-General of Registration was abolished with effect from the 1st May 1924. Subsequently on a reconsideration of the situation the post was revived to which a Sub-Registrar, Mr. J. C. Mukherji was appointed in December 1924. It was also ordered by Government that the post would be open to Sub-Deputy Collectors, but if a Sub-Registrar were appointed an allowance of Rs. 50 per mensem would be given.

3. A change of a far-reaching character during the triennium was brought about by the revision of the table of Registration fees. With effect from the 1st June 1925, the registration fees under Article A on documents of value above Rs. 250 and the fees under all other articles except J (2) and K (1) (a) were doubled. Owing to the revision of the fee rates, the increase in revenue is roughly estimated at 61·3 per cent.

4. In September 1924, certain rules under the Cutchi Memon's Act (XLVI of 1920) were framed, under which the Registrar and the Sub-Registrar of Calcutta, were appointed to be the authorities before whom declarations under the said Act should be made. A Cutchi Memon who makes such declarations will be governed, in matters of succession and inheritance, by Muhammadan law.

5. The ordinary work of the department decreased during the triennium, the number of offices falling from 415 to 408. Compulsory and optional registrations affecting immoveable property numbered 4,975,654 and 154,751 respectively, against 5,141,049 and 142,820 in the preceding triennium, showing a decrease of 3·2 per cent. in compulsory registrations and an increase of 8·3 per cent. in optional registrations. Other registrations which include all registrations not affecting immoveable property, wills and written authorities to adopt, decreased by 12·7 per cent. The receipts of the department during the past three years amounted to nearly 83½ lakhs and the expenditure to nearly 51¾ lakhs, leaving a surplus of nearly 31¾ lakhs. As compared with the previous triennium the receipts and expenditure increased by 7·2 per cent. and 17·9 per cent. respectively. The increased expenditure was due mainly to the introduction of time scales in the pay of Sub-Registrars and their staff, but also to extra provision for furniture and book binding.

6. The need for suitable buildings for registration offices and quarters of Sub-Registrars is very great. Out of 408 offices in Bengal, only 51 offices are housed in Government buildings. For want of funds, most of the registration offices are not properly equipped with furniture and record racks, while the work of keeping indexes and registers properly bound is much in arrears. The total expenditure on account of racks, furniture and book binding during the period under review was Rs. 79,245 against Rs. 18,420 during the previous triennium, but much yet remains to be done. The total grant hitherto available for furniture and book binding is far from adequate to meet the requirements of all the offices. If the records are to be properly preserved, more funds must be provided for the erection of buildings, for the purchase of furniture and for book binding.

7. There were two Inspectors of Registration offices up to the 22nd July 1923 when this number was reduced to one. The Inspectors made between them 231 inspections during the triennium under review against 707 inspections in the previous triennium. District Registrars, including District Officers, made 502 inspections during the triennium under report against 707 inspections in the previous triennium. The inspections made by Sadar Sub-Registrars and Subdivisional Officers increased during the triennium. If inspection work is to be maintained at the proper standard greater efforts must be made by all inspecting officers.

8. The total number of appeals under section 72 and applications under section 73, disposed of during the triennium was 5,613 against 5,830 in the previous triennium, while the number of prosecutions under section 83 for false statement and false personation and its abetment was 92 as against 116 in the previous triennium.

9. His Excellency the Governor in Council desires to acknowledge the thanks the efficient administration of the department by Khan Bahadur Aminul Islam and the valuable assistance rendered on all occasions by his personal assistant Babu Jatish Chandra Mukharji.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Registration, Bengal, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of the resolution together with the report be submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department.

Ordered also that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to Khan Bahadur Aminul Islam for his information.

Kutubdia Light-house.

2. The tower, lantern-room and clockwork are in good order. The light was exhibited without interruption throughout the year.

Staff quarters.—In good order. Annual repairs have been carried out.

Lightning conductor.—In good order.

Health.—The health of the staff was good

Revetment.—Last inspected by the Port Engineer on the 9th December 1925. The revetment is in good order. The most exposed portion was strengthened with additional stone, 6,100 cubic feet of stone being placed in position.

3. The installation of improved lights at Kutubdia and Norman's Point Light-houses as per recommendations of the Elder Brethren of Trinity House being estimated to cost Rs. 75,000, the Port Commissioners approached Government for a grant to meet the cost. The Kutubdia Light has been recommended by the Local Government to be centralised and the cost of improving the Norman's Point Light-house which is a matter of local concern has been ordered to be borne by the Chittagong Port Trust Revenues. The Government of India have under consideration the general question of the administration of light-houses in India and the question whether the Kutubdia Light should be centralised depends on the decision which may be arrived at on that question. As regards the Norman's Point Light, the Port Commissioners have accepted the recommendation of the Elder Brethren to establish a 65,000 candle power flashing light at a cost of about Rs. 20,000. Steps are being taken to procure the apparatus and it is hoped to exhibit the new light before the end of the year. Provision has been made for this purpose in the sanctioned Budget Estimate of the Port Fund for 1926-27.

Light-vessel on South Patches Shoal.

4. The unattended acetylene gas buoy not being considered sufficiently reliable for the South Patches Shoal, the Light-ship "Sarsuti" was replaced on her station on the 23rd March 1925. She was removed from her station on the 21st December 1925, and brought into this Port for her annual overhaul and repairs. During her absence the steamer hulk "First Winner" was moored in the same position and used as a light-vessel temporarily. After completion of her repairs the "Sarsuti" was replaced in position on the 2nd February 1926. The health of the crew was good.

Rai Bijay Krishna Basu Bahadur continued in charge of the Garden as Superintendent throughout the year, and Babu Somadev Ganguli as Assistant Superintendent.

The following is a list of the superior staff of the Garden at the end of 1925-26:—

The menial staff of the Garden at the end of 1925-26 comprised, in addition to temporary men who were engaged as required—

1 Salutri.	14 Gardeners.
1 Jamadar.	3 Sweepers.
8 Durwans.	1 Chaprasi.
20 Keepers.	1 Carpenter.
2 Bhistis.	2 Cartmen.
1 Cook.	1 Syce.

1 Night-watch.

The general condition of the animals was satisfactory and the death-rate normal. There were no epidemics of any kind except an outbreak of verminous gastro-enteritis which occurred amongst the black leopard cubs in the Small Carnivora House. In spite of all precautions they succumbed to the disease, which in the case of animals of the feline tribe is not readily amenable to treatment. The larger Carnivora thrived extremely well and there were no serious casualties amongst them. The ruminants maintained excellent health and bred freely as is shown in the Superintendent's report. Casualties among the birds have been normal and the standard of the collection has been maintained both as regards variety and numbers.

No new construction was undertaken during the year but repairs and alterations to existing structures were executed as follows:—

The Cooch Behar House, hitherto occupied by the smaller cats, has been remodelled and converted into a pheasant enclosure, comprising 6 compartments and spacious runs for which the plans and measurements were obtained from the Zoological Society of London.

The outdoor aviaries of the Sarnamoyi House were thoroughly overhauled and in place of ordinary wire-netting, linked wire-netting was used. The iron work was repaired where necessary and the aviaries were repainted.

Quadrennial repairs to the Hermitage were executed during the year.

Annual repairs generally were carried out on restricted lines, those houses for which repairs were urgently required being attended to. The roads and paths were maintained in good order and the main drive was remetalled in part.

The Garden was well maintained and during the cold weather months a good show of flowering annuals was exhibited. A silver cup and several prizes were awarded to the Garden for exhibits of annuals at the Agri-Horticultural Society's Flower Show.

Many shrubs and plants were cleared and the old Fern House, on the southern side of the office, which was no longer in use was dismantled and new lawns were laid and the site was considerably improved.

The financial condition of the Garden on the whole is satisfactory and there was an increase in the receipts from visitors which amounted to Rs. 72,500-10 as against Rs. 67,706-13 in the previous year thus showing an increase of Rs. 4,793-13. The receipts at the gate are found to reflect economic and other conditions to a noticeable extent for which reason the increase cannot be counted upon to continue as a matter of course. The balance in hand is by no means an excessive margin against a diminution of receipts and unforeseen casualties in the collection.

The following is a comparative statement of visitors and receipts for recent years—

Year	Number of visitors.	Receipts
		Rs. A.
1923-24	877,478	64,420-7.
1924-25	943,553	67,706-13.
1925-26	1,030,647	72,500-10.

A large number of children under four years of age and school children attended by their teachers were admitted free. On the occasion of the Fancy Fair about 17,500 people visited the Garden.

In addition 38,947 persons visited the Garden on free days. Detailed statement of the number of visitors and receipts appears in Appendix B.

The thanks of the Committee are due to those ladies and gentlemen who have added to the zoological collection by donations, a list of which is given in Appendix C. Thanks are also due to those who kindly offered to present animals to the Garden, but whose offers could not be accepted either because the particular species was already sufficiently well represented, or owing to want of accommodation.

The Corporation of Calcutta at their meeting held on the 26th August 1925 sanctioned a grant of Rs. 22,495-8 to the Garden for the year under report, and the amount of the rate bills in respect of the Garden was adjusted against the sanctioned grant as the rate bills fell due. The Committee desire to take this opportunity of expressing their thanks to the Corporation of Calcutta for their generous contribution to the funds of the Garden.

Thanks are also due to the Officer Commanding and Officers of the 3rd Battalion, 17th Dogra Regiment, for permitting their regimental band to play at the Garden on Tuesday afternoons free of charge.

Owing to the disbandment of the Town Band the same regimental band was engaged to play on Sunday afternoons from the 13th September 1925. It may not for the same reason be possible to engage a band to play on Sundays continuously throughout the year as the regimental bandsmen proceed on leave during the hot weather months. This is a matter of great regret to the Committee both from the point of view of the public and that of the finances of the Garden, but they have done and will do their utmost to ensure that the intermission of the Band on Sundays shall be no longer than can be avoided.

The Committee are much indebted to those members of the public who send their old and broken down horses to the Zoological Gardens.

P. L. BUCKLAND,
President.

A. M. McGRIGOR,
Honorary Secretary.

Superintendent's Report.

I have the honour to submit the following report on the existing condition and the progress of the menagerie of the Garden.

The following comparative table shows how the various collections of animals in the Garden stood during the last four years:—

Year.	Mammals.	Birds.	Reptiles.
1922-23 ...	281	851	142
1923-24 ..	323	1025	178
1924-25 ...	316	1079	194
1925-26 ...	322	1206	100

In spite of the losses recorded the general condition of the animals continued good. With the exception of cases of Verminous Gastro-enteritis amongst the smaller Carnivorous animals no epidemics of any kind occurred.

Many important additions to the collection were made during the past year among which attention may be called to the following:—

2 Siamangs.
2 Orangoutangs.
4 Cat bears.
3 Persian gazelles.
3 Red deer.
1 Lesser white-nosed monkey.
1 Rhea.
2 Brown bears.
6 Mute swans.
1 Pair waterbucks.
1 Sable antelope.
1 Gold marmoset.
1 Pair trumpeters.

The exhibition of a pair of fine Polar bears in the Garden elicited criticism in the form of letters to the Press. The animals were received on deposit from a private owner and were accommodated in a cool and airy enclosure protected by matting blinds with a well constructed water tank shielded from the rays of the sun. It was believed that with an ample supply of water in which to bathe there was no reason why Polar bears should be more affected by the climate than other, such as Siberian bears, a view which was shared by competent authorities in England who had been consulted. It is gratifying to report that so far this view has been justified and it is hoped these animals will be able to stand the climate of Lower Bengal with no greater difficulty than other animals which are indigenous to cooler climates.

The management of the Garden is much indebted to Mr. W. K. Dods for his kind help in obtaining for the Garden constant supplies of common aquatic birds.

A list of donors and their donations during the year is given in Appendix C.

The following is a list of animals that were born in the Garden during the year.

Union Courts.

26. Any person wishing to bring a suit before a union court may appear before the court on a day fixed for its sitting and present a petition orally or in writing. He shall at the same time produce any document on which he relies that is in his custody.

27. The court shall then enter in the Register of Suits in the form given in Schedule C the name and address of the plaintiff or plaintiffs, the name and address of the defendant or defendants, the nature of the claim, the date and place where the cause of action arose, and the relief claimed. The court shall make a note of any document produced in the column of remarks.

28. The court shall then, after such examination of the petitioner as it considers necessary, proceed either under section 78 or section 80.

29. If any defendant does not reside within the jurisdiction of the court, the summons may be served by registered post with acknowledgment due, the postage for which shall be paid by the plaintiff or it may be sent for service to the president of the union board in which the defendant resides.

30. If the defendant appears and applies for time either to proceed under section 81, or to produce evidence, the court shall fix a date for the hearing, but unless the defendant declares his intention to move for a transfer under section 81, he shall be called on to answer the petition at once, either orally or in writing.

31. When both sides are ready with their witnesses the court shall proceed to hear the case.

32. The petitioner shall have the right to begin, unless the defendant admits the facts alleged by the plaintiff and contends that, either in point of law or on some additional facts alleged by the defendant, the petitioner is not entitled to any part of the relief which he seeks, in which case the defendant shall have the right to begin.

33. The party having the right to begin shall state his case and produce his evidence in support of the issue, which he is bound to prove.

The other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any) and may then address the court generally on the whole case.

The party beginning may then reply generally on the whole case.

34. The president or, with his permission, another member of the court may make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence in the Register of Suits.

35. The court may at any time permit the petitioner to withdraw the suit or to abandon a part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the part so abandoned, on such terms as to compensation to the defendant for expense and trouble incurred as the court may think fit.

On abandonment of the whole or part of a claim, the plaintiff shall pay the fee under section 90, in respect of the amount of the claim abandoned.

If a suit be adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, such agreement or compromise shall be recorded, and the court shall pass a decree in accordance therewith.

36. Decrees or orders of the court shall be entered in the Register of Suits and signed by all members of the court hearing the case.

37. All money payable under a decree shall be paid as follows, namely :—

38. Where any money payable under any decree is paid out of court or the decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the court whose duty it is to execute the decree, and the court shall record the same accordingly after realizing the fees from him.

The judgment-debtor also may inform the court of such payment for adjustment within three months of the payment and apply to the court to issue a notice in writing or otherwise to the decree-holder to show cause, on a day to be fixed by the court, why such payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified, and if after such notice the decree-holder fails to show cause why the payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified, the court shall record the same accordingly after realizing the fees from the judgment-debtor.

A payment or adjustment which has not been certified or recorded as aforesaid shall not be recognized by any court executing the decree.

39. At any time within three years of the signing of the decree, the successful party may apply to the court for execution of the decree.

The court will then issue an order on the president of the union board, who will proceed to realize the amount as if it were an arrear of rate imposed under section 37.

40. On realization of the amount of the decree or any part thereof, the president of the union board shall credit to the union fund such proportion of the amount as is due for the fee and hold the balance of the amount in deposit to the credit of the decree-holder.

41. After the expiry of one month from the date of a decree dismissing a suit, or after the expiry of three months of any suit decreed, if the decree-holder takes no steps to recover his decree, the court shall proceed under section 99 to realize any fees due to it.

42. The certificate to be granted under section 91 shall be in the form given in Schedule C.

43. On execution of such transferred decree, the munsif shall certify execution to the court.

46. If any union court ceases to have jurisdiction in any area, all suits arising from such area and pending in such court shall be heard and determined, and all decrees passed by such court in cases arising from such area and remaining unexecuted shall be executed by the union court which simultaneously comes into office, and if no union court comes simultaneously into office, by the civil court which, if the suit were about to be instituted, would have jurisdiction to try it.

Such suits shall be tried and such decrees shall be executed as suits instituted in, and decrees passed by, such civil court.

47. The defendant may set off any amount legally due to him by the plaintiff for which he could bring a suit in a union court. If such set-off is established, the decree shall be for any sum which finally appears to be due to either party.

48. The following registers shall be kept :—

1. For rule 54 substitute the following :—

54 (1) Within one month from the date of publication of the notification referred to in clause (a) of rule 53 or of the notification issued by the Commissioner of the Division approving the election of Chairman of a newly constituted or reconstituted local board, whichever be the later, the local board shall elect the requisite number of members for the district board at a special meeting to be convened by the Chairman.

(g) The Subdivisional Magistrate or other Magistrate selected for the purpose by the District Magistrate shall preside over the meeting. He shall not be entitled to vote or to give a casting vote and shall decide by lot when the number of votes given to two or more candidates is equal.

(h) The election shall proceed as follows :—

(a) Any member present may propose a candidate either by name or by virtue of his office, for election to the district board.

(b) Such proposal shall not be taken into consideration unless it has been seconded by a member other than the candidate or the proposer.

(c) If the number of candidates duly proposed and seconded be less than or equal to the number to be elected by the local board, the President shall declare such candidates to be duly elected.

(d) If the number of candidates duly proposed and seconded be greater than the number to be elected by the local board the President shall hand to each member present a voting paper in the form appended to these rules, in which the names of the candidates who have been duly proposed and seconded have been entered and shall ask each member to record his vote by placing the mark × in the space provided for the purpose in the voting paper opposite to the name of the candidate or the names of the candidates whom the member prefers and to sign his name on the back of the counterfoil of the voting paper.

(e) The voting paper shall be invalid if the mark × is placed opposite the name of more candidates than the number to be elected or if it is so placed as to render it doubtful to which candidate such mark is intended to apply.

(f) Each member after placing the mark × on the voting paper shall fold the counterfoil so as to conceal the votes recorded, sign his name on the back of the counterfoil and then hand the paper to the President. Without such folding of the counterfoil or signature the voting paper shall be invalid.

(g) The President, as soon as all the voting papers have been delivered to him, shall in the order hereinafter specified—

(i) reject any voting paper which is unsigned or of which the counterfoil is not properly folded ;

(ii) tear off the counterfoils containing the signatures and place them apart from the voting papers proper ;

(iii) reject any voting paper which is irregularly marked ;

(iv) read out the names of the candidates against which the mark × has been validly made ;

(v) count the votes ; and

(vi) declare the candidates to whom the largest number of votes have been given to be elected as members of the district board.

(i) Notwithstanding anything contained in rule 74 or in the Rules of Business adopted by any board, if there are more candidates than vacancies, the names only of the persons proposing and seconding and the number of persons voting for each candidate and the names of the candidates duly elected shall be entered in the proceedings.

The headmasters of the institutions named above should direct candidates who appear at their schools to fill up the application form for permission to appear at the Matriculation Examination in their presence. These applications will be forwarded to the office of the Inspector of Schools. The Inspector of Schools will then countersign the applications of those candidates who pass the test and forward them to the candidate direct for transmission to the Registrar with the fees for the examination.

Bills introduced in the Bengal Legislative Council, Report of Select Committees presented or to be presented to that Council, and Bills published before introduction in that Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2814L., dated Calcutta, the 14th August, 1926.—The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Motor Vehicles Tax Bill, 1926, is published for general information. The Bill was published in the Calcutta Gazette, Extraordinary of the 11th March, 1926.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE BENGAL MOTOR VEHICLES TAX BILL, 1926.

We, the members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the imposition and levy of a tax on motor vehicles in certain areas in Bengal was referred, have considered the Bill and the opinions contained in Papers Nos. (1) to (12) to the Bill, and have the honour to submit this, our report.

A majority of the Committee was of opinion that as—

(1) it would be extremely difficult to work in practice the provisions of clauses 16 to 18 of the Bill;

(2) the fact that it would be possible for the various local bodies to impose different rates of tax under the provisions of the Bill would cause friction and difficulties;

the principle of the Bill should be radically altered and a system of provincial taxation should be introduced instead of that proposed in the Bill. Such a system of provincial taxation would have the following advantages:—

(a) The rates would be uniform.

(b) It would be possible to divide the proceeds equitably among the various local bodies in the mufassal on such a basis as the mileage of metalled roads, the amount which each local body spends from its own resources on the construction and repair of such roads, bridges, etc.

(c) If a provincial roads fund could be established, the Local Government would be in a stronger position to approach the Government of India for grants-in-aid from the proceeds of existing taxation on motor vehicles, i.e., import duty on cars and tyres and the duty on petroleum.

The Committee recommend that a Committee of Experts be appointed at once by Government to report on what lines legislation to create a provincial road fund should be undertaken.

The Committee, therefore, recommend that the Bill be not further proceeded with.

Minute of Dissent by Raja Maniloll Singh Roy of Chakdhighi.

I am sorry I could not agree in dropping the Bill. So long ago as 1921 the Government assured the Council, as may be seen from volume V, pages 388 to 393 of the Proceedings of the Bengal Legislative Council, of empowering the local authorities for levying taxes and exercising control over motor vehicles which regularly use their roads. This was in the 1st Council and by the end of the life of the 2nd Council and after 5 years, a Bill was introduced which is defective, and it was suggested by the majority to be dropped, with the promise of a better and more comprehensive Bill. Instead of that the present Bill could have been so altered and rules framed so as to make it acceptable to most of the interests involved, till a Bill as foreshadowed was ready. It is to the interest of all concerned that this should be done. No motor industry can ever flourish if there be no road and good road too. It is not that the local authorities are wilfully neglecting the roads. They have no money for the purpose.

Minute of Dissent by Rai Harendranath Chaudhuri and Dr. Bidhan Chandra Roy.

We cannot subscribe to the majority view that the Bill should be dropped after so much ado. While it is doubtful, in spite of a recent instance, whether the Select Committee is competent to make such a recommendation, the recommendation itself is regrettable in the extreme. The strangest part of the report, however, is the ready acquiescence of the Government in the proposal to abandon this Bill which has been under a promise of enactment (made and repeated by the Government) for years.

2. It is admitted on all hands, by officials and non-officials alike, that the roads and bridges in rural and urban areas outside Calcutta—not originally designed for motor transport—have been sustaining considerable damages on account of the introduction and expansion of motor vehicular traffic. While, therefore, on the one hand, the calls on local funds for road and bridge repairs have been much more frequent and heavy, the local authorities on the other are unable to control the traffic and powerless to recoup their losses. In this helpless situation, if the District Boards and their representatives have been insistent in their demand for remedial legislation, the Government have been equally persistent in their promise to arm them with enlarged powers in this behalf.

In November, 1921, i.e., soon after the introduction of the Reforms, Raja Maniloll Singh Roy moved a resolution that " rules be framed authorising District Boards to levy taxes on Motor Vehicles." To secure the object of the resolution better, the late Hon'ble Sir S. N. Banerjea, the then Minister in charge of the Department, himself suggested and at his suggestion the following resolution was carried:—

> " That this Council recommends to the Government that legislation be undertaken as early as possible with a view to enabling District Boards to levy taxes and exercise control over motor vehicles which regularly use their roads."

Since then enquiry after enquiry was made by way of interpellation, and the Government repeatedly answered that the Motor Vehicles Bill would shortly be introduced. Even so late as in February 1926 the Hon'ble Member in charge assured the Council in reply to a question put by Babu Jogendranath Mitra that " Government propose to introduce a Bill shortly in the Legislative Council which will empower District Boards and Municipalities to tax motor vehicles kept within their jurisdiction " But now after taking five long years to introduce this Bill, after gathering non-official and official views—which with few exceptions almost unanimously support the Bill—the Government turns round and says that the Bill should not be proceeded with—a change of front as sudden as it is surprising indeed.

But what are the grounds on which this Bill is going to be given up? To examine them seriatim they are:—

(i) In the first place, the difficulties to work in practice the provisions of clauses 16 to 18 of the Bill. But clause 16 (corresponding to section 141A of the Bengal Municipal Act) simply prohibits double or multiple taxation on a motor vehicle. Clause 18 of the Bill is also drafted on the lines of section 141B of the Bengal Municipal Act. Where is the difficulty about these clauses is simply unintelligible. There may be some difficulty with regard to (clause 17) apportionment of tax; but that is unavoidable, even if the tax be raised on a provincial basis for distribution among the various local bodies. Exactly the same considerations which will influence the apportionment of the tax in the one case will apply to the other case as well. On the contrary, in accordance with the scheme of local taxation as indicated in the Bill, there will probably be better data available from the local registers to go upon.

(ii) Secondly, the possibility of various local bodies imposing different rates. What harm can there be if the rates differ consistently with differing local conditions within the prescribed maximum? Even if it is desirable to have uniform rates—which many will doubt—well, it is probably the simplest thing to provide for such a rate in the present Bill.

(iii) Thirdly, the question of establishment of a provincial roads fund. The report says that if such a fund be established, the Local Government may be in a stronger position to secure grants from the import duties on motor-cars and petroleum. How little local considerations and even those of big local schemes financed from provincial funds influence the Government of India to contribute from central sources of revenue is not unknown to well-informed people. Their refusal to contribute in the case of the Howrah Bridge, their unwillingness to allow the Railways to be taxed for the benefit of the local bodies are few among the well-known instances of their indifference to local considerations. On the contrary, the scheme of a provincial roads fund may prove an inroad into the domain of local self-government and an encroachment upon the legitimate rights of the local bodies, and as such cannot but be considered an unwelcome step. The proposal, even from the Government benches, has all along been to enlarge the powers of the local bodies in the matter of the taxation and control of motor vehicular traffic—powers which are now enjoyed in respect of other vehicles by local bodies and even in respect of motor transport by the Calcutta Corporation within its local limits. To say that it should appertain to a provincial scheme is to indicate a new policy hitherto unknown in this sphere—a policy which may easily lend itself to a more costly scheme of administration than that contemplated in the present Bill.

We, therefore, maintain that there are no substantial grounds for scraping the Bill altogether and creating widespread disappointment among local bodies by putting off a measure that is really overdue, and further maintain that the line of the new legislation indicated in the majority report is inconsistent with the repeated Government promise and incompatible with the principle of local self-government. At the same time, we do not deny that the Bill as it was referred to the Select Committee does not disclose material defects. But material or trivial, the defects could be remedied by amendments consistent with the objects and the general lines of the Bill. There were, therefore, hardly any sufficient reasons for brushing aside the Bill altogether.

Secretary to the Bengal Legislative Council (offg.).

COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

No. 5553 Com.—The 18th August 1926.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 155 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878 (VIII of 1878), and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following rules for the Presidency of Bengal in supersession of the rules published under notification No. 2717 S.R., dated the 17th November 1922 :—

Part I—Rules for denaturing spirit in the custom-house or in a licensed warehouse.

1. The denaturing of imported spirit in the custom-house or in a licensed warehouse shall be conducted according to the following rules :—

(1) The ingredients to be used for denaturing spirit shall be * "light caoutchoucine" and "pyridine bases" added in the proportion of ½ per cent. of each. The pyridine bases must be manufactured from mineral (coal-tar) and not animal sources. A guarantee as to the mineral source of the pyridine bases shall be furnished by the importer or the person desiring to denature the spirit. To every 99 gallons of plain spirit there shall be added half a gallon of light caoutchoucine and half a gallon of pyridine bases. The minimum strength of spirit to be denatured shall be 55° O. P.

(2) The ingredients mentioned in clause (1) shall be procured at his own expense by the importer or the person desiring to denature the spirit. Before admixture the ingredients shall be lodged at the custom-house or at some other suitable place to be approved by the Collector of Customs who shall cause samples to be tested, in order to satisfy himself that the ingredients are suitable for denaturing alcohol.

(3) When the mixture of the denaturants with the spirit is completed, the liquor shall be tested by drawing a sample of about half an ounce from each cask or drum, and adding to each sample separately three or four times the quantity of water. If the mixture becomes milky, the liquor shall ordinarily be admitted at the reduced rate of duty. In cases of dispute the decision of the Collector shall be final. In any case in which the Collector considers such a course necessary he may direct that samples of the liquid shall be examined and reported on.

* For the specification and tests of "light caoutchoucine" and "pyridine bases", vide appendix to these rules.

Provided that—

(a) if the consignment contains casks or drums of not less that 50 gallons each, the person denaturing may demand that not less than one sample shall be sent from each such cask or drum; and

(b) if the consignment contains casks or drums of less than 50 gallons each, the person denaturing may, and shall, if so ordered by the Collector, before admixture of the denaturants pour the contents of two or more such casks or drums into one or more casks or drums of not less than 50 gallons capacity; and, when this is done, the spirit shall be treated, for the purpose of testing and for the levy of expenses under clauses (5) and (6), as if originally stored in such larger casks or drums.

(4) Should any of the samples examined be reported as not being denatured spirit within the meaning of clause (1) above, the claim in respect of the whole of the spirit represented by such sample shall be rejected, and the spirit shall either be dealt with in all respects as spirit chargeable with the ordinary rate of duty, or if the person denaturing the spirit so desire, it shall be further treated under clauses (1), (2) and (3) so as to render it denatured spirit within the meaning of clause (1) above.

(5) A fee of Rs. 2 shall be paid by the person denaturing the spirit for each sample of the ingredients referred to in clause (1) or the liquid referred to in clause (3) sent for chemical analysis.

(6) Any expense which may be incurred by the Collector in connection with the denaturing of spirit or the testing of denatured spirit shall be paid by the person denaturing the spirit before the removal of the spirit is allowed.

(7) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Collector may allow special methods of denaturation for spirit to be used in particular arts or manufactures if he is satisfied that the Local Government (Excise Department) within whose jurisdiction it is intended to use the spirit have duly sanctioned the use of such spirit by the person or persons for whom it is being denatured.

Part II.—Rules for admitting spirit declared to have been denatured before importation.

2. Whenever spirit is declared to have been denatured, prior to importation by the admixture of ½ per cent. of "light caoutchoucine" and ½ per cent. of "pyridine bases" so as to bear the reduced rate of duty under article 29 of Schedule II to the Indian Tariff Act, 1894 (VIII of 1894), the Collector shall cause an examination, and a report thereon to be made of such number of samples of such spirit as he may deem necessary.

3. The provisions of Part I as to examination and payment of fees shall apply to the testing of spirit under this Part.

4. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Collector may admit specially, at the reduced rate of duty, for use in particular arts or manufactures spirit which has been denatured with ingredients other than the ordinary denaturants if he is satisfied that the Local Government (Excise Department) within whose jurisdiction the spirit is intended to be used have duly sanctioned the use of such spirit by the person or persons for whom it is being imported.

APPENDIX.

The following instructions are laid down as to the specifications and tests of the denaturants prescribed in the foregoing rules :—

1. "Light Caoutchoucine".

(1) Nature.—By "caoutchoucine" is meant the liquid obtained by the dry distillation of vulcanised rubber. By "light caoutchoucine" is meant the liquid obtained by redistilling "caoutchoucine" and collecting that portion which passes over, at or below about 200°C.

(2) The specific gravity of "light caoutchoucine."—The specific gravity of "light caoutchoucine" at 60° F should lie between ·835 and ·860 referred to water as 1·000.

(3) Boiling test.—For the purpose of this test 100 c. c. "light caoutchoucine" should be redistilled in the pyridine testing flask (see below under pyridine bases). Under those conditions not more than 15 c.c. of distillate should pass over, at or below 100°C, whilst a total (including the foregoing) of at least 70 c. c should pass over at or below 200°C.

(4) Absence of soluble constituents.—When 25 c.c. of "light caoutchoucine" are shaken with an equal volume of water in a stoppered graduated cylinder and due time is allowed for the liquids to separate again into two layers the "light caoutchoucine" should show no appreciable diminution in volume.

(5) Neutrality.—The aqueous layer obtained from test (4) should show no marked acidity or alkalinity when tested with both red and blue litmus paper.

(6) Limit of saturated hydrocarbons.—At least 70 per cent. of the "light caoutchoucine" should be soluble in concentrated sulphuric acid. For testing this 25 c.c. should be measured off into a tapped and stoppered separating cylinder of suitable capacity and sulphuric acid should be added, at first with great care and in very small quantities After each addition of acid the cylinder should be shaken and cooled to avoid loss of volatile constituents. Sufficient acid must be used (usually about 50 c.c.) for the highly coloured layer to become quite fluid so that it can separate readily from the upper layer of unattacked constituents. After a final thorough shaking and cooling the cylinder should be left for about three hours to effect complete separation of the two layers, and the lower layer be then tapped off. The almost colourless upper layer should be again shaken with strong sulphuric acid until it appears free from soluble constituents (as judged by the colour imparted to the sulphuric acid) and separated as before after standing It should finally measure not more than 7 c.cs. The acid used should be of specific gravity 1·84 and may be of commercial quality.

(7) Freedom from water.—"Light caoutchoucine" should not contain any appreciable amount of water. Any officer engaged in drawing samples for test should certify on the bottle that he has drawn the sample from the bottom of the containing vessel where the water if present, will be found. For this purpose he should employ a syphon tube of which the shorter limb reaches to the floor of the containing vessel. He should also assure himself that the sample is collected in a bottle free of moisture.

II.—Pyridine Bases.

(1) Nature.—"Pyridine" proper is a single definite compound (C_5 H_5 N.), boiling at about 116°C. "Pyridine bases" are mixtures of pyridine with closely allied compounds (boiling at various temperatures) and must be of guaranteed mineral origin.

(2) Colour.—The colour must not ordinarily be darker than that given by two cubic centimetres of decinormal iodine solution dissolved in one litre of distilled water.

(3) Miscibility.—The pyridine bases should mix readily and completely with spirit and should give a clear or only slightly opalescent solution when mixed with twice their volume of water.

(4) Amount of water present.—From 20 c.c. of the pyridine bases mixed with 20 c.c. of caustic soda solution (density 1·4) at least 18·5 c.c. of the bases should separate, after having been repeatedly shaken together and allowed to stand.

(5) Titration.—Dissolve 1 c.c. of the pyridine bases in 9·5 c.c. of distilled water Titrate with normal sulphuric acid until a drop of the mixture gives a definite blue spot on Congo-red paper (the blue colour should at once disappear). At least 10 c.c. of the normal sulphuric acid should be required to produce this reaction. (To prepare the Congo-red paper dissolve one gram of Congo-red in one litre of distilled water. Soak filter paper in this and then dry.)

(6) Cadmium chloride reaction.—Vigorously shake together 10 c.c. of a solution of 1 c.c. of pyridine bases in 100 c.c. of distilled water with 5 c.c. of a 5 per cent. solution of dry fused cadmium chloride. A distinct crystalline precipitate should immediately result, and there should be an abundant separation of crystals within ten minutes.

(6) (a) Another 10 c.c. of the above 1 per cent. aqueous solution should give a white precipitate when mixed with 5 c.c. of Nessler's reagent.

(7) Boiling point.—Distil 100 c.c. of the pyridine bases in the manner described below. At least 50 c.c. should distil over, at or under 140°C and a total of 90 c.c. at or under 160°C.

Method.—One hundred c.c. of pyridine bases are placed in a short-necked copper flask of about 200 c.c. capacity. The flask is arranged on an asbestos card, which has a circular hole of 30 m.m. diameter cut in it. To the flask is attached a fractionating column (consisting of a tube 13 m.m. wide and 170 m.m. long, provided with one bulb) of which the side tube (issuing 1 c.m. above the bulb) joins a Liebig's condenser of which the cooled part is at least 400 m.m. long. A standard thermometer is placed in the head of the column so that its bulb occupies the centre of the bulb of the column.

The speed of distillation is adjusted to 5 c.c. per minute, the distillate being received in a graduated glass cylinder. At least 50 c.c. should distil over, at or under 140°C and 90 c.c. at or under 160°C at a barometric pressure of 760 m.m.

If the barometer varies from 760 m.m. a correction of 1°C for each 30 m.m. of variation should be applied (e.g., under 770 m.m. of pressure 50 c.c. of distillate should come over, at or under 140·3°C. whilst under 750 m.m. the same amount of distillate should come over, at 139·7°C.).

N. B.—These specifications and tests supersede those published with notification No. 461 S. R., dated the 13th March 1918.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 105 Marine.—The 18th August, 1926.—The following instruction relating to the construction of passenger ships designed to carry more than 12 passengers, the keels of which are laid in Bengal on or after the 1st January 1925 are published for general information. The instructions are based on the instructions issued by the Board of Trade and regulate the construction of all ships which come under Act XXI of 1923 except vessels engaged in the home trade which perform voyages other than those specified in the Notification of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce, No. 2744, dated the 5th May 1923.

1. Definitions and Calculations of Floodable Length.—

†Definitions.—

The sub-division load-line is the water line used in determining the sub-division of the ship.

The length of the ship is the extreme length at the sub-division load-line.

The breadth of the ship is the extreme width from outside of frame to outside of frame at or below the sub-division load-line.

The bulkhead deck is the uppermost continuous deck to which all transverse watertight bulkheads are carried.

The margin line is a line drawn parallel to the bulkhead deck at side line, and 3 inches below the upper surface of that deck at side.*

The draught is the vertical distance from the top of keel amidships to the sub-division load-line.

The freeboard is the vertical distance from the sub-division load-line to the margin line amidships.

The depth of the ship is the sum of the draught and freeboard as above defined.

The sheer of the bulkhead deck at any point is the vertical distance between the beam at side line at that point and a line drawn parallel to the sub-division load-line at the height of the beam at side line amidships. (See paragraph 72 A (a).)

The block coefficient of fineness of displacement to sub-division load-line referred to in Form BH 2† shall be determined as follows:—

$$\frac{\text{Volume of displacement to moulded lines.}}{\text{Length} \times \text{Breadth} \times \text{Draught.}}$$

The permeability of a space is the percentage of that space which can be occupied by water.

The volume of a compartment which extends above the margin line shall be measured only to the height of that line. Volumes shall be understood as volumes to moulded lines.

The machinery space is to be taken as extending in length between the extreme main transverse watertight bulkheads bounding the spaces devoted to the main and auxiliary propelling machinery, including boilers when installed.

---

* Where there is a variation in the thickness of the bulkhead deck at side, the top of the deck should be taken at the mean thickness of the deck at side above the beam. The mean thickness throughout the whole length of the deck should be calculated, and in places where the mean thickness exceeds the least thickness by more than two inches the thickness there should be taken as the least thickness plus two inches.

† See Appendix I.

2. Marking of Load Water-line.—As the sub-division load-line used in determining the sub-division of the vessel may or may not correspond with the centre of the load-line disc as determined by the Tables of Freeboard, the Surveyor should see that none of the statutory marks indicating the vessel's freeboard in salt water is placed on the vessel's side in a higher position than the sub-division load-line defined in paragraph 1. Two cases may be given for the purpose of illustration.

1. Where this line is at or above the Indian Summer line.

2. Where it is at or below the winter North Atlantic line.

In the first case, no alteration in the marking, as determined by the tables of freeboard, is required, in the second case, the disc should be marked so that the line passing through its centre corresponds with the sub-division load water-line, and this will be the only mark required apart from the fresh-water line. (See paragraph 82.)

3. Floodable Length of Ships with Continuous Bulkhead Deck.—The floodable length at any point of the length of a ship shall be determined taking into consideration form, draught, and other limiting characteristics of the ship in question.

This floodable length for a given point in a ship with a continuous bulkhead deck is the maximum percentage of the length of the ship (having its centre at the point in question) which can be flooded under the definite assumption hereafter set forth in paragraphs 6 and 7 without the ship being submerged beyond the margin line.

4. Method of Determining Floodable Length and Exclusion of Independent Calculations.—For the purpose of determining the floodable length of a vessel with a continuous bulkhead deck, a flooding curve should be constructed by the method described in Appendix I., using the average permeabilities determined in accordance with paragraphs 6 and 7 and the floodable lengths given by this curve should be used for the purpose of fixing the sub-division of the vessel in accordance with the following paragraphs.

This method of determining the floodable length should be used to the exclusion of independent calculations, except in the case of vessels which are shown to the satisfaction of the Government of Bengal to be outside the limits of the curves or so exceptional in form that the method in question could not be applied. In such cases full plans and details of the calculations should be submitted for consideration.

5. Floodable Length of Ships not having a Continuous Bulkhead Deck.—In the case of ships not having a continuous bulkhead deck, the floodable length must be such as to secure to the ship in question, for each portion of its length, and for all conditions of trim after damage, a measure of safety at least equal in effectiveness to that laid down for the ship with continuous bulkhead deck.

In addition to the case of ships not having a continuous bulkhead deck cases may also occur in which, though the vessel has a continuous bulkhead deck, certain bulkheads are carried up water-tight beyond this deck. In such cases the requirement stated above as to maintaining the measure of safety must govern the procedure adopted. Examples of the procedure to be adopted in certain types of vessels are given in paragraphs 21 to 29 of the Bulkheads Committee's report (1914).

In the case of vessels not having a continuous bulkhead deck it is necessary, with a view to maintaining a measure of safety at least equal in effectiveness to that laid down for the ship with a continuous bulkhead deck, that special consideration should be given to the application of those requirements in which reference is made to the margin line. For example, the position of the margin line governs the strength of watertight bulkheads (paragraph 56), the height at which openings in the collision bulkhead are permissible (paragraph 24), the position of the means for operating watertight doors and sluice valves (paragraphs 27 and 39), the arrangements in connection with pipes, &c., carried through bulkheads (paragraph 38), and the test pressures for watertight doors in certain cases (paragraph 46). In these cases if the permissible lengths of the compartments separated by the bulkhead in question are determined with reference to margin lines at different levels, the higher of the two lines should be adopted for the purpose of the afore-mentioned requirements.

The margin line also affects the height at which automatic ventilating scuttles are permissible (paragraph 40), the arrangements in connection with discharges through the side (paragraph 42), the protection of the inboard openings of ash-shoots, rubbish-shoots, &c. (paragraph 44), and the height of watertight ventilators and trunks (paragraph 64). In these cases the margin line which has been used in determining the permissible length of the compartment in which the openings in question are situated should be adopted for the purposes of the paragraphs referred to. This is however subject to the requirements laid down in paragraphs 22 and 23 of the Bulkheads Committee's Report that in certain cases all the openings in the side below a superstructure deck must comply with the requirements of paragraphs 40 to 44 of these Instructions.

6. Permeability.—The definite assumption referred to in paragraph 3 relate to the permeabilities of the spaces in question below the margin line.

In determining the floodable length a uniform average permeability is to be used throughout the whole length of each of the three following portions of the ship:—

(1) The machinery space (see paragraph 1);

(2) The portion forward of the machinery space; and

(3) The portion abaft the machinery space.

(i) For steamships the permeability of the machinery space, including the double bottom in wake thereof, is to be taken as 80 per cent. For ships fitted with internal combustion engines the corresponding permeability is to be taken as 85 per cent. unless it is proved by actual calculation that a lower figure may be adopted, provided that in no case shall that figure be less than 80 per cent.

(ii) The permeabilities for spaces forward and aft of the machinery space shall be as follows:—

(a) Sixty per cent. in cargo spaces, bunkers* (permanent or reserve), store-rooms, baggage and mail rooms, chain-lockers, watertight shaft or pipe tunnels, and fresh-water tanks above the double bottom.

It must be proved that the spaces just enumerated are practicable for the purpose intended and that they are in fact to be so used. The same permeability shall not be assigned to any other space without the approval of the Government of Bengal.

(b) Ninety-five per cent. in passenger and crew spaces, peaks, trimming-tanks, exclusively so used, double bottoms, and all other spaces not specifically appropriated to one of the purposes indicated in the foregoing section (a).

If in a 'tween deck space enclosed by complete transverse permanent steel bulkheads any portion thereof is appropriated to passengers, the whole of that space shall be regarded as passenger space; and, similarly, 'tween deck spaces appropriated for the carriage of either passengers or cargo shall be regarded as passenger spaces.

(iii) Where the spaces before or abaft the machinery space below the margin line consist partly of spaces mentioned in section (a) and partly of spaces mentioned in section (b), the average percentage of permeability shall be determined separately for each end by the expression $95—35r$, where r is the ratio between the volume of the spaces mentioned in section (a) and the total volume of the space in the portion of the ship under consideration.

(iv) Surveyors should note that, when calculating the average permeability of any portion of a vessel, the volumes of the spaces are to be calculated to the margin line only and to moulded lines. The buoyancy of the vessel's structure has been allowed for when fixing the permeabilities specified above.

7. If the outer sides of the watertight shaft or pipe tunnels be farther from the centre line than one quarter of the midship breadth of the vessel, or if, in the case of shaft tunnels, the length of the after recess be more than six per cent. of the length of the ship; or, if the height of the after recess above the inner bottom be greater at any point than one-fifth of the depth of the ship plus 3 feet, a permeability of 95 per cent. should be adopted, instead of 60 per cent. as specified in the preceding paragraph. The length and depth of the ship are defined in paragraph 1.

Whenever the permeability of tunnels and recesses is taken at 60 per cent., the volumes of the spaces so dealt with are to be supplied by the builders

*Includes oil fuel spaces not situated in double bottoms.

Permissible Length of Compartments, &c.

8. Permissible Length of Compartments.—The maximum permissible length of one compartment having its centre at any point in the ship's length is obtained from the floodable length by multiplying that length by an appropriate factor, called the factor of sub-division.

This factor of sub-division depends on the length of the ship and decreases in a regular and continuous manner as the length of the ship increases.

The variation of the factor of sub-division may be expressed by a curve, of which the co-ordinates represent the length of the ship and the value of the factor. The following table gives certain points on this curve.

TABLE.

A.	B.
	Feet.
1·00	295
0·90	374
0·84	404
0·65	489
0·50	571
0·39	699
0·34	899

9. Permissible Length of two adjacent Compartments.—When the factor of sub-division is equal to or less than ·5, it may be doubled in order to give at any point of the ship's length the total length of two adjacent compartments; but, in that case, the length of the shorter compartment of any pair shall not be less than one-quarter of the total length so obtained.

When this procedure is adopted it should be shown that, throughout the whole length of the vessel, the combined length of each pair of adjacent compartments does not exceed the floodable length multiplied by twice the appropriate factor of sub-division.

10. Correction for Change of Permeability.—If one of the two adjacent compartments is situated inside the machinery space and the second is situated outside the machinery space, and the average permeability of the portion of the ship in which the second is situated differs from that of the machinery space, the length of the pair of compartments shall be adjusted to the proper value by applying a suitable correction.

To meet the case where different average permeabilities (u_1 and u_2) are applicable to the two adjacent compartments (A and B) separated by the bulkhead bounding the machinery space, the following procedure should be adopted. Let l_1 be the length of compartment A, and l the combined length that A and B would have if the permeability u_1 were applicable to both. Then the permissible length of B is given by the expression.

$$\frac{u_1}{u_2}(l - l_1).$$

11. Upper Limit of Length of Compartments.—In no case whatever shall the length of any watertight compartment exceed 92 feet.

12. Lower Limit of Length of Compartments.—No compartment, excepting the peaks in vessels under 200 feet in length, should be considered as forming part of the watertight sub-division unless it is at least 10 feet in length for at least one quarter of the vessel's breadth inboard from the ship's side.

13. Limit of Length of two Foremost Compartments.—When the factor of sub-division applicable to any ship is less than ·84 but more than ·5, the combined length of the two foremost compartments shall not exceed the floodable length of the extreme forward end, provided also that the length of the second compartment is not greater than that permissible by paragraph 8 above and not less than 10 feet.

Additional Sub-division at Forward End of Large Vessels.

14. Additional Sub-division at Forward End of large Vessels.—When the length of the ship is more than 699 feet but less than 823 feet the floodable length at the forward end of the ship shall be at least 20 per cent. of the ship's length; and the ship, forward of a bulkhead placed either at the distance of the actual floodable length abaft the stem or not nearer to the stem than 20 per cent. of the ship's length, shall be divided into at least three compartments. When the length of the ship is equal to or greater than 823 feet the same method shall be adopted, but the floodable length shall be at least 28 per cent. and the number of compartments at least four.

If the above requirements as to floodable length at the forward end of large vessels are not met by transverse sub-division carried to the normal bulkhead deck, they may be met by carrying up the transverse bulkheads through 'tween decks above the normal bulkhead deck, the margin line and corresponding floodable length being determined as for the case mentioned in paragraph 22 of the Bulkheads Committee's Report. Alternatively they will be considered to be fulfilled if a watertight deck complying with the conditions of paragraphs 51, 62 and 63 of these Instructions is fitted from the stem to a transverse watertight bulkhead placed not nearer to the stem than the percentage of length required to be floodable, provided that this deck is that next above the sub-division load-line, and that there is at least one continuous deck above this deck. As a further alternative they will also be considered to be fulfilled if an inner skin complying with the conditions mentioned in paragraphs 53* to 55 is fitted from the forepeak bulkhead to a transverse watertight bulkhead situated not less than the prescribed percentage of length abaft the stem. In this case the forepeak bulkhead should not be more than 6 per cent. of the vessel's length abaft the stem.

In cases where a watertight deck or inner skin is fitted forward in accordance with this paragraph, the height and spacing of the transverse bulkheads within the length protected by the watertight deck or inner skin are to be determined as laid down in paragraphs 8 to 12.

Recesses and Steps in Bulkheads.

15. Recesses.—A bulkhead may be recessed transversely, provided the sides of the recess are at a sufficient distance from the sides of the ship.

When the factor of sub-division is equal to or less than ·5 the sides of a recess may be considered to be at a sufficient distance from the sides of the ship if they are (1) not farther from the middle line plane at any point than one-fourth the breadth of the vessel at the load-water line at that point, and (2) not nearer the sides of the ship at any point than the distance specified for an inner skin in a vessel of the same size. (Paragraph 55.) When the factor of sub-division is greater than ·5 no part of the sides of the recess should be nearer to the sides of the ship than the vertical surface passing through a line on the load-water plane in way of the recess, which line should at all points be (1) not less than one-fifth the midships breadth of the vessel from the sides of the vessel measured at right angles to the middle line plane, and (2) not more than one-fourth the midships breadth from the middle line. In addition, if the recess is carried down towards the skin of the vessel, it should not be carried nearer the skin than the distance specified for an inner skin in a vessel of the same size.†

16. Steps.—Vertical steps are inadmissible in the main transverse watertight bulkheads of ships where the factor of sub-division is greater than ·5, unless such arrangements are made by additional sub-division as shall maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by bulkheads without steps.

This additional sub-division should be such as to secure that the volume of the space enclosed by watertight partitions, which would be opened to the sea by a blow in way of any part of the step (except at the bulkhead itself), shall not exceed the maximum permissible volume of a compartment bounded by plane bulkheads in that portion of the vessel. It will be observed that the effect of the above rule is to bring the adjoining bulkheads nearer to the stepped bulkheads than would otherwise be the case.†

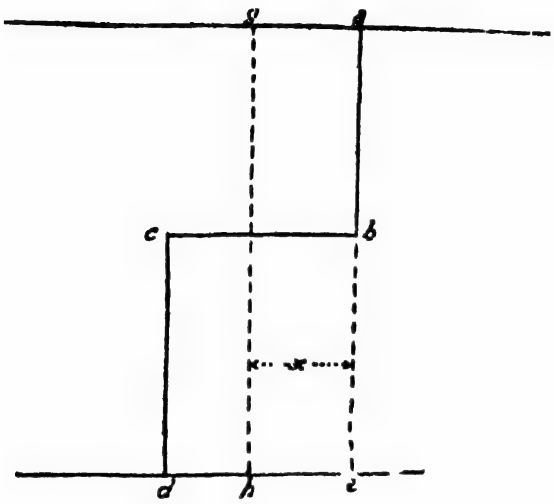
17. Length of Steps.—The total length of the steps in any bulkhead shall not exceed 2 per cent. of the ship's length plus 10 feet. The total length is the horizontal length between that portion of the bulkhead which is furthest aft and that portion which is furthest forward.†

---

* In this case the length to be assumed flooded under paragraph 53 is, the percentage prescribed by paragraph 14 (i.e., 20 per cent. or 28 per cent. as the case may be)

† Plate XXIX of the Bulkheads Committee's Report illustrates this paragraph.

18. Recesses and steps not to affect volume of compartments.— The existence of recesses or steps in a bulkhead shall in no case affect the permissible volumes of the compartments adjacent to such bulkheads, as determined by paragraphs 8 to 14. The position of an equivalent plane bulkhead in such cases may be found as in the example given below.



A bulkhead having a vertical step is illustrated by the sketch. The position of the equivalent plane bulkhead g h is found thus :—

$$x = \frac{\text{Volume } b\ c\ d\ e}{A}$$

Where A is the sectional area of the ship up to the margin line at position approximately midway between c e and g h.

Peak and Machinery Space Bulkheads.

19. Ships shall be fitted with a forepeak bulkhead to extend to the bulkhead deck, and to the weather deck in ships having continuous superstructures. This bulkhead shall be placed at a distance of not less than 5 per cent. of the ship's length from the forward side of the stem at the sub-division load-line.

When the superstructure is not continuous and the forepeak bulkhead is not carried to the weather deck, a bulkhead should be fitted between the bulkhead deck and the superstructure deck at a reasonable distance abaft the forepeak bulkhead and all the openings in the bulkhead deck forward of the 'tween decks bulkhead and abaft the forepeak bulkhead are to be either fitted with proper means of closing, or trunked up to the superstructure deck.

An afterpeak bulkhead and bulkheads dividing the machinery space from the cargo and the passenger spaces shall also be fitted and carried up to the bulkhead deck. The afterpeak bulkhead may, however, be stopped below the bulkhead deck, provided that it shall at least be carried to the first deck above the load water-line, and that such deck forms a watertight flat from the afterpeak bulkhead to the stern, and also provided that the degree of safety of the ship as regards sub-division is not thereby diminished.

In all cases stern-tubes should be enclosed in watertight spaces.

Sub-division of Small Foreign-going Passenger Steamers.

20. Vessels under 295 feet and not under 259 feet in length should be sub-divided so that (1) neither the peak nor either of the two compartments immediately abaft the peak shall exceed the floodable length, and that (2) the combined length of these three compartments shall not be less than 35 per cent. of the length of the vessel.

Vessels under 259 feet in length should be sub-divided so that (1) neither the peak nor the compartment immediately abaft it shall exceed the floodable length, and that (2) the combined length of these two compartments shall not be less than 17½ per cent. of the length of the vessel.

The provisions of paragraphs 15 to 18 relating to steps and recesses are not intended to apply to bulkheads fitted in addition to those required under the foregoing paragraphs, but it will be understood that the peak and machinery space bulkheads required by paragraph 19 are to be fitted in all the above cases.

Fire-resisting Bulkheads.

21. In parts of a ship above the margin line there shall be fitted fireproof bulkheads which will serve to retard the spread of fire. The mean distance between any two consecutive bulkheads of this description shall not be greater than 131 feet. Recesses in these bulkheads shall be fireproof, and the openings in these bulkheads shall be fitted with fireproof doors.

Steel bulkheads of scantlings and stiffening equal to those specified for the 'tween decks immediately below the margin line (paragraphs 56 to 61) may be accepted, provided they be not lined with flammable material. Any other fire-resisting material may be used for these bulkheads provided it be shown by suitable experiments that bulkheads so constructed are capable of withstanding a fire of considerable fierceness and high temperature for a reasonable period, say 1,500° Fahr. for one hour. Recesses in these bulkheads should be of equivalent construction, from the fire-resisting point of view, to the bulkheads themselves, and any openings in the bulkheads should be closed with doors which are, if practicable, of similar construction. If hinged doors are fitted, they should be secured by suitable lever handles workable from either side of the bulkhead, and the number of the handles should be such as to prevent the door from warping under the conditions mentioned above.

Exits from Watertight Compartments.

22. In passenger and crew spaces a practicable means of escape for the occupants shall be provided from each watertight compartment.

There shall be a means of escape for the crew from each engine-room, shaft tunnel and stokehold compartment independently of the watertight doors.

In passenger steamers, which are emigrant ships the requirements of paragraphs 32 and 33 of the Board of Trades' Instructions relating to Emigrant Ships are to be complied with.

Openings in Watertight Bulkheads.

23. Number of Openings to be as Small as Possible.—The number of openings in watertight bulkheads shall be reduced to the minimum compatible with the design and proper working of the ship; satisfactory means shall be provided for closing these openings. Special consideration should be given to the arrangements of air trunks for forced draught so as to avoid piercing watertight bulkheads so far as possible.

24. Openings forbidden in certain Bulkheads.—No doors, sluice valves, manholes, or access openings are permitted—

(b) In watertight transverse bulkheads dividing a cargo space from an adjoining cargo space or from a reserve bunker, except as provided in paragraph 32.

Pipes are not to be carried through the collision bulkhead without the special permission of the Government of Bengal. If a suction pipe is led to the forepeak a screw-down stop-valve capable of being operated from above the bulkhead deck should be fitted on the suction inside the forepeak.

25. Number of Openings in Machinery Space Bulkheads.—In the machinery space and apart from bunker and shaft-tunnel doors, not more than one door may be fitted in each main transverse bulkhead within the machinery space for intercommunication, but where more than one separate shaft tunnel is fitted a door may be cut for each tunnel.

If a tunnel is fitted forward either for the purpose of pipes or as a communication passage it shall be fitted with a watertight door.

26. Protection of Bunker Doors against Blocking.—In the case of watertight bunker doors, satisfactory arrangements shall be made by means of screens or otherwise, to prevent the coal from interfering with the closing of the doors.

27. Types of Watertight Doors.—The only types of watertight doors permissible are hinged doors, sliding doors, and doors of any other equivalent pattern, excluding plate doors secured only by bolts.

A hinged door shall be fitted with lever-operated catches workable from each side of the bulkhead.

A sliding door may have a horizontal or vertical motion. If hand-operated only, the door shall be capable of being operated at the door itself and also from an accessible position above the margin line.* If operated by power, it shall be capable of being operated from the bridge, and by hand both at the door itself and from an accessible position above the margin line.* A door dropping by its own weight, and fitted with a cataract cylinder or equivalent arrangement may be considered as being operated by power, if capable of being released from the bridge.

The watertight doors referred to in the previous paragraph may be divided into the following types:—

(1) Hinged doors with lever-operated catches workable from either side of the bulkhead.

(2) Vertical or horizontal sliding doors, complying as regards design and material with paragraph 45, and fitted with hand gear for operating them as specified in paragraph 28.

(3) As (2) but with brass rubbing faces.

(4) As (3) as regards design, material, and hand gear, but fitted also with a releasing arrangement as described in paragraph 29.

(5) As (4), but with the releasing gear worked also from the bridge as described in paragraph 29.

(6) As (3) but worked by power pressure gear complying with paragraph 30.

28. Hand gear for operating watertight doors.—The mechanism required for closing sliding watertight doors by hand from above the margin line should be expeditious in its action and sufficiently powerful to be capable of closing the door under unfavourable circumstances. The operating gear should be accessible in all cases. It should, if possible, consist of a crank handle or a wheel and handle, and be permanently attached to the shafting so as to be always ready for use. If this cannot be done, the handle or wheel should be stowed immediately alongside the working position. There should be an index at the operating position showing whether the door is open or closed. The lead of shafting to the door should be as direct and free from complications as possible. All screws, rods, and other apparatus for raising and lowering watertight doors should be provided with proper lubrication, and guarded where necessary.

29. Doors which close by their own Weight.—Each door of this description should be capable of being dropped by means of a local releasing gear, which should, be workable both from an accessible position above the margin line and from one in the vicinity of the door. The gear should be capable of being speedily re-engaged to the door from both of those positions, so that if the door fails to close when released it can be closed by hand. A cataract cylinder or equivalent arrangement should be fitted to control each door when dropping.

If such doors are to be considered as being operated by power under paragraph 27, they should be fitted with releasing gear at the door itself and also be capable of being released from the bridge. The releasing gear should be so arranged that the hand gear may be re-engaged independently of the position of the release controlling gear on the bridge, so that should the door fail to close when released from the bridge, it can be closed by hand. The arrangements for transmitting from the bridge the power necessary to actuate the releasing gear and cause the door to drop, should be submitted for the approval of the Government of Bengal.

If the Surveyor is of opinion that there is danger of persons being injured while passing through a doorway in a bulkhead, owing to the door being of a quick closing type, or for any other reason, a report of all the circumstances should be forwarded to the Government of Bengal before a declaration is issued.

30. Power Pressure Gear for Operating Watertight Doors.—When power pressure gear is fitted for operating watertight doors, the arrangements should comply with the following conditions. The power should always be available and ample for working the doors at sea. The source of power should be in duplicate, each power unit being sufficient to work the whole of the doors. A gauge or indicator should be fitted at the central control station showing whether the power is available.

The responsible officer should be able to close the whole of the power-worked doors practically simultaneously from a central control station on the bridge. With the doors so closed those in the vicinity of the doors should be able to open any door by operating a handle on either side of the bulkhead, but the arrangements should be such that whenever the local handle is released the door automatically closes. If the officer has the power to open all the doors by means of the central control station, those in the vicinity of the doors should be able to adjust the arrangement in such a manner as to prevent any individual door from being thus opened. It should not be possible for the apparatus to be so adjusted as either to prevent any door from being closed by the officer or to enable any door to be kept open (except by holding on to the local handle) after it has been so closed.

When the central control station is not being actuated, each individual door should be capable of being closed by power by means of the local handle on either side of the bulkhead The arrangement should be such that, if the power gear breaks down, the closing of the doors by hand is not interfered with.

The hand operating gear required to be fitted in connection with power-worked doors should be permanently attached to the doors unless satisfactory means are provided for speedily and reliably engaging it from above the margin line.

If power is employed, the nature of the power should be submitted to the Government of Bengal for approval.

The fluid used in a hydraulic system should be a non-freezing mixture when low temperatures are likely to be encountered.

If bilge floats are fitted, the Surveyors should satisfy themselves that the arrangements are efficient and that they do not interfere with any other part of the closing system.

31 Indicators, Warning Sound Signals and Means of Communication.—Where doors are capable of being closed from a central control station, an indicator showing automatically whether each door is open or closed should be fitted in the vicinity of that station. The arrangements at the doors for operating this indicator should be such as to minimise the possibility of tampering with them in such a way as to cause the indicator to show that a door is closed while it is in reality open.

Doors of types (5) or (6) in passenger, crew, and working spaces, which are capable of being closed from a position from which the doors are not visible, should be fitted with sound signals for giving warning when they are about to be closed One movement at the closing station should be sufficient both to sound the signals and to close the doors, and the signals should work effectively even when the vessel has a list.

In the case of doors which are not capable of being closed from a central control station by the responsible officer, sufficient and efficient means of communication by telegraph, telephone or otherwise should be provided whereby the officer may rapidly communicate with the members of the staff responsible for closing the doors.

32. Fitting of Hinged Doors.—Hinged watertight doors in passenger, crew, and working spaces are only permitted above a deck, the underside of which, at its lowest point at side, is at least 7 feet above the load water-line, and they are not permitted in those spaces below such deck.

Hinged watertight doors of specially heavy design may be fitted above the load water-line in bulkheads between cargo 'tween-deck spaces. Efficient closing gear is to be provided by means of which they are to be kept closed at sea. None of these doors shall be fitted, even at the ends of the ship, in a cargo 'tween-deck space in the amidship region of which 'tween-deck space it would not be permissible to fit such doors.

33. Fitting of Sliding Doors of various Types.—All other watertight doors shall be sliding doors.

Where hinged doors are not admissible and where it is stated in the following paragraphs that a door may be of any specified type, doors of a type bearing a lower number numerically in the table in paragraph 27 should not be employed but doors bearing a higher number may be employed unless specifically excluded.

(1) If the number of watertight doors in the main transverse watertight bulkheads at or about the stokehold level in the machinery space exceeds five, excluding the watertight doors at the entrance of tunnels, all watertight doors situated below the load water-line shall be of type (5) or type (6). Watertight doors above the level of the load water-line may be of type (3).

(2) If the number of doors, as defined in the preceding paragraph, does not exceed five, the following cases should be distinguished.

(a) If the vessel carries not more that 50 passengers, the watertight doors situated below the level of the load water-line may be of type (3).

(b) If the vessel carries more than 50 passengers, these watertight doors may be of type (4).

(c) If the number of passengers exceeds 200, these doors should be as required by clause (1) of this paragraph.

The foregoing instructions refer to cases where all the watertight doors at or about the stokehold level in the machinery spaces are in transverse bulkheads. If, in any case, there are watertight doors in longitudinal bulkheads the case should be reported to the Government of Bengal for instructions as to the type of door required, both in the longitudinal and in the transverse bulkheads.

34. Vertical and Horizontal Doors.—Watertight doors at or about the stokehold level should be vertical sliding doors, but horizontal doors may be permitted in tunnel recesses.

35. Fitting of Power Doors in special cases.—If watertight doors which have sometimes to be open at sea for the purpose of trimming coal are fitted between bunkers in the 'tween decks below the bulkhead deck, these shall be operated by power. The opening and closing of these doors shall be recorded in the official logbook.

When trunkways in connection with refrigerated cargo are carried through more than one main transverse watertight bulkhead, and the sills of the openings are less than 7 feet above the load waterline, the watertight doors at such openings shall be operated by power.

The doors referred to in this paragraph should be of type (6).

36. Portable Plates.—Portable plates on bulkheads shall not be permitted except in machinery spaces. Such plates shall always be in place before the ship leaves port, and shall not be removed at sea except in case of urgent necessity. The necessary precautions should be taken in replacing them to ensure that the joint shall be perfectly watertight.

37. Trunkways carried through Bulkheads.—If trunkways for forced draught, for access from crew's accommodation to the stokehold, or for any other purpose, are carried through the main transverse watertight bulkheads, the integrity of the watertight bulkheads, shall be maintained by watertight doors or other equally effective means.

Automatic float valves are not allowed for closing the airtrunks referred to in this paragraph, but positive watertight valves or doors should be fitted.

38. Pipes, &c., carried through Bulkheads.—Where pipes electric-light cables, &c., are carried through transverse watertight bulkheads below the margin line,* arrangements shall be made to ensure the integrity of the watertightness of the bulkheads.

39. Sluice Valves.—The number of sluice valves in watertight bulkheads shall be reduced to the minimum, and shall not be allowed except in positions where they are sufficiently accessible at all times to allow of its being ascertained that they are in good order. They shall be strongly constructed, efficiently fitted, and regularly inspected. Satisfactory provision shall be made for operating them from an accessible position above the margin line.* Means shall be provided for indicating when they are open or shut.

Arrangements for indicating whether a sluice valve is open or shut should be such as to give this indication at the position above the margin line from which the valve is worked; and in the event of deck plates being fitted, the arrangements should be such that the valves are closed before the deck plates can be put in place.

* See paragraph 5.

Openings in Ship's Side.

40. Side Scuttles.—(a) Subject to clause (b) below, when side scuttles are fitted below a deck the under side of which at its lowest point at side is less than 7 feet above the sub-division load-line, they shall be permanently fixed.

When side scuttles which can be opened during navigation are fitted below a deck the under side of which at its lowest point at side is 7 feet or more above the sub-division load-line, the scuttles should be fitted immediately below the deck.

(b) Side scuttles which are capable of being opened may be fitted in the positions defined in clause (a), provided that—

They shall be closed watertight and locked before the ship leaves port:

They shall not be opened during navigation.

The time of opening such scuttles in port and of closing and locking them before the ship leaves port shall be entered in the official logbook;

The construction of such scuttles shall be such as effectively to prevent any person opening them without the consent of the master.

(c) Scuttles fitted in the positions defined in clause (a) shall be provided with efficient metal shutters.

In 'tween decks above the deck mentioned in the foregoing sub-paragraph (a) opening side scuttles may be fitted except in spaces exclusively devoted to the carriage of cargo or coal.

No side scuttles shall be fitted in any spaces which are exclusively devoted to the carriage of cargo or coal.

All side scuttles which are not accessible during navigation shall be fitted with efficient metal covers, and both the glass and the cover shall be kept closed during navigation.

The requirements of paragraph 60 of the Board of Trades' Instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamships are also to be complied with.

Subject to their passing suitable tests the metal shutters or covers may be made of malleable cast iron.

No automatic ventilating scuttles shall be fitted in the ship's side below the margin line.

41. Inlets and Discharges in Side.—All inlets and discharges in the side shall be arranged so as to prevent any accidental admission of water into the ship.

To prevent the accidental admission of water into the ship owing to the fracture of main or auxiliary inlet valve chests having long necks and fastened directly to the skin of the vessel, these inlet chests should be made as short as practicable and should be attached to special wrought-steel boxes built on to the skin of the ship, where necessary to avoid a long neck.

Paragraph 194 of the Board of Trades' Instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamships is also to be complied with.

42. Scuppers, Sanitary Discharges, &c.—The number of scuppers, sanitary discharges, and other similar openings in the side shall be reduced to the minimum, either by making each dicharge serve for as many as possible of the sanitary and other pipes or in any other satisfactory manner.

Discharges led through the ship's skin from spaces below the margin line* shall be fitted with efficient and accessible means for preventing water from passing inwards. It is permissible to have either one valve, fitted with a means of working it at a distance, or two valves without such gear, one of these valves being always accessible. In either case, the accessibility of the valves or of the means of working shall be assured by their being situated above a deck the underside of which at its lowest point at side is at least 7 feet above the sub-division load-line.

The Surveyors should note that the conditions of the foregoing paragraph can be fulfilled by many different arrangements of valves.

* See paragraph 5.

A sketch of the arrangement which it is proposed to adopt should, for the present, be submitted in each case. All such arrangements must provide for the following:—

(a) One of the valves referred to is to be fitted in a strong valve box secured to the ship's side.

(b) One of the valves is to be an automatic non-return valve.

(c) The discharge pipes, valve boxes, &c., are to comply with paragraph 193 of the Board of Trades' Instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamships.

The requirements of this paragraph apply only to such discharges as scupper outlets and discharges from waterclosets, lavatories, &c., in passenger and crew spaces, and not to the discharges in the machinery space connected with the main engines, auxiliary pumps, &c.

43. Gangway, Cargo and Coaling Ports.—The Surveyors should report any case in which it is proposed to fit gangway, cargo or coaling ports in a ship's side, partly or entirely below the sub-division load-line, and should state whether the working of the vessel would be hampered if the fitting of the ports were not allowed.

44. Ash-shoots, Rubbish-shoots, &c.—The inboard openings of ash-shoots, rubbish-shoots, &c., shall not be lower than a deck the under side of which at its lowest point at side is at least 7 feet above the sub-division load-line. They may be permitted above this deck if fitted, to the satisfaction of the Government of Bengal with covers, which shall be watertight if below the margin line. Such covers shall be so arranged as to prevent their being clogged in any way, and shall be at least as easily and effectively closed as watertight doors and side scuttles.

The foregoing requirement does not apply to those ash ejectors and expellers the inboard openings of which must necessarily be below the load-line in the stokehold, provided that such ejectors and expellers are fitted with efficient valves and other fittings for preventing water entering the vessel.

Construction and Tests of Watertight Doors.

45. Construction.—Watertight doors shall be carefully and efficiently constructed and fitted. Those giving direct access to any spaces containing bunker coal should, together with their frames, be made of cast or wrought steel. In other positions doors and frames may be made of cast iron. When screw gear is used for operating the door, the screw should work in a gunmetal nut.

Vertical doors should have no groove at the bottom in which dirt may lodge so as to prevent the door closing properly. The bottom bearing of the door may, however, be of skeleton form so arranged that dirt cannot easily lodge. The bottom edge of vertical doors should be tapered or bevelled with a view to cutting through coal or other obstacles in the doorway.

46. Tests.—Watertight doors shall be tested by a water pressure equal to that prescribed for the bulkhead where the doors are located. The test shall be made before the vessel is put in service, and either before or after the door is fitted.

The purpose of the test referred to is to show that the door is of sufficient strength and reasonably tight under this test. The head of water above the bottom of the door should be to the margin line in way of the bulkhead on which the door is to be fitted, but in no case less than 20 feet in the case of sliding doors, and 10 feet in the case of hinged doors.

The test may be applied at the maker's works provided that after being fitted in a place on the bulkhead, the door is tested by a hose in the same manner as the bulkhead (paragraph 69).

Double Bottoms.

47. Longitudinal Extent.—In ships 200 feet and under 249 feet in length, a double bottom shall be fitted at least from the machinery space to the forepeak bulkhead, or as near thereto as practicable. In ships 249 feet and under 300 feet in length, it shall be fitted at least outside of the machinery space and shall extend to the fore and after peak bulkheads respectively, or as near thereto as practicable.

In ships 300 feet and over in length, it shall be fitted amidships and shall extend to the fore and after peak bulkheads respectively, or as near thereto as practicable.

48. Lateral Extent.—In ships over 300 feet in length, the inner bottom shall be continued out to the ship's side in such manner as to protect the bilges.

The tank top plating should be carried out to the ship's side at a height not less than that at the centre. Where this is practicable. Where necessary for drainage purposes, however, the outer edge of the margin plate may be lowered, provided the line of intersection with the bilge plating is not less than 2½ per cent. of the vessel's breadth above the line of the rise of floor.

49. Vertical Extent.—In ships over 699 feet length, the double bottom, for at least half the ship's length amidships and forward to the forepeak bulkhead, shall extend up the ship's sides to a height above the top of the keel not less than 10 per cent. of the ship's moulded breadth.

50. Wells in Double Bottoms.—Wells constructed in the double bottom in connection with the drainage arrangements shall not extend downwards from the inner bottom more than half the depth of the double bottom at that point. A well extending to the outer skin is, however, permitted at the after end of the shaft tunnels of screw ships.

Watertight Decks.

51. "Watertight" and "Weathertight."—In the following paragraph the expression "watertight deck" is used to indicate a deck so constructed as to prevent water from getting through in either an upward or a downward direction. A "weathertight" deck is one through which in ordinary sea conditions, water will not penetrate in a downward direction. The bulkhead deck should in all cases be weathertight in this sense, unless there is a deck above it which is weather-tight.

If a watertight deck is fitted, it should not be below the level of the sub-division load line at any part of its length. (See paragraphs 62 regarding the construction of watertight decks.)

52. Allowances for Watertight Deck.—If a watertight deck complying with the conditions of paragraphs 51, 62 and 63 is fitted throughout the whole or a portion of the length of a vessel having a factor of sub-division, as prescribed by paragraph 8 which is less than ·45, the permissible length of the transverse watertight compartments in way of which the deck is fitted may be determined by means of a factor which exceeds the prescribed factor by ·05, subject, however, to the condition that this modified factor must in no case exceed ·45 and that the watertight deck is below the highest continuous deck to which any of the watertight compartments in way of the watertight deck are extended.

In cases where the factor is doubled under paragraph 9 to give the length of two compartments, and where the watertight deck does not extend all fore and aft, the factor will change at the point where the deck stops, and it will be necessary to give special consideration to the lengths of the compartments at this point, in a somewhat similar manner to that indicated in paragraph 10 for change of permeability. For example, if there be two adjoining compartments A and B, of which A is clear of the watertight deck and B is underneath that deck, if f_1 is the ordinary factor of sub-division for the vessel, and if f_2 is the modified factor for use in way of the watertight deck, if l_1 is the length of A and l the combined length that A and B would have if the deck were not fitted in B, then the permissible length of B should be obtained from the expression:—

$$\frac{f_2}{f_1}(l - l_1)$$

Longitudinal Sub-division.

53. Watertight Longitudinal Bulkheads and Inner Skins.—Watertight longitudinal bulkheads and inner skins may be fitted, subject to the following conditions:—

(a) It must be proved that the margin line will not be brought under water when any space bounded by transverse watertight partitions between the outer skin and the inner skin or longitudinal bulkhead, on one side, is flooded for a length equal to the floodable length of the vessel in that region, as determined for transverse subdivision only.*

(b) If the list under the conditions of the preceding paragraph is such as would render it difficult to utilise all the vessel's boats, or to maintain her navigability, arrangements must be fitted for counteracting the list to the satisfaction of the Government of Bengal.†

54. Non-watertight longitudinal subdivision.—When a longitudinal bulkhead is fitted and the above conditions (a) and (b) are not fulfilled, the bulkhead is to be so constructed that water entering the vessel on one side of the bulkhead will pass as freely as possible to the other side.

Vessels are frequently constructed with longitudinal coal bunker bulkheads which are not watertight but are capable of confining a large body of water on one side of the vessel for a considerable time. It is recommended that, in new vessels, longitudinal coal bunker bulkheads should be dispensed with so far as practicable. When however, it is necessary to adopt side bunkers their size should be reduced as much as possible, and if they are of considerable length, they should be sub-divided by transverse bulkheads, so that the flooding of any two adjacent wing compartments may not give the vessel a serious list. In such bunkers the usual doors should, if possible, be dispensed with, but if this is not practicable, openings of sufficient size should be formed in the lower part of the bulkhead and the openings should not be fitted with doors, but provided with coal screens when necessary to prevent coals falling into the stokeholds.

In some cases, the side bunkers are cross-connected by transverse bunkers, but the free flow of water from one side to the other may be prevented by longitudinal passage ways, &c. Further, some vessels have long transverse bunkers similarly obstructed at the middle line. In such cases the longitudinal passage ways or other obstructions should be kept at a sufficient height above the bottom of the vessel to allow of as free a passage of water beneath them as possible.

55. Allowances for watertight longitudinal bulkheads and inner skins.—If a vessel, whose factor of sub-division as prescribed in paragraph 8 is less than ·45, is fitted with an inner skin, or with longitudinal side bulkheads, and the arrangements comply with the requirements of paragraph 53 and with the conditions (c), (d), and (e) stated below, the permissible length of the transverse watertight compartments in way of which the longitudinal sub-division is fitted may be determined by means of a factor which exceeds the prescribed factor by ·05, subject, however, to the condition that this modified factor must in no case exceed ·45. In cases where the factor is doubled under paragraph 9 to give the length of two compartments and where the longitudinal sub-division does not extend all fore and aft, a procedure similar to that described in paragraph 52 should be adopted.

(c) Longitudinal bulkheads and inner skins should extend to a deck above the loadline, and the crowns of the side compartments or spaces should be watertight.

(d) The distance of an inner skin from the outer skin at any part should not be less than two feet plus two per cent. of the moulded breadth of the ship.

(e) The inner skin or longitudinal bulkheads should not be pierced except by the necessary man-holes, which must be fitted with efficient covers having such arrangements as to secure a permanent watertight joint.

Strength and Construction of Watertight Bulkheads, &c.

56. Construction of Transverse Bulkheads.—Watertight bulkheads shall be constructed in such a manner that they shall be capable of supporting, with a proper margin of resistance, the pressure due to a head of water up to the margin line.‡

57. Plating.—Transverse bulkheads should be watertight up to the bulkhead deck and should have plating of not less thickness than required by Table 4 in Appendix II.

---

* See paragraph 14 respecting inner skin at forward end of large vessels

† See paragraph 117 of the Bulkheads Committee's Report.

‡ See paragraph 5.

Where a bulkhead is at the end of a stokehold space, the lower part of the bulkhead plating to a height of at least 24 inches above the stokehole floor, should be at least ·1 inch thicker than given by the Table.

Where a bulkhead is at the end of a bunker space, the lowest strake should be at least 36 inches high and ·1 inch thicker than given by the Table. In all other cases the lowest strake should be at least ·04 inch thicker, except that any limber plates should be ·1 inch thicker.

58. Boundary angles.—These may be single and should be at least ·1 inch thicker than the bulkhead plating required by the Table.

59. Stiffeners.—These should be in accordance with Table 1 or Table 2 in Appendix II, in association with a spacing of 30 inches. Other forms of stiffener may be adopted if they provide not less strength and stiffness than those tabulated and the spacing of stiffeners may be increased up to a maximum of 36 inches, provided they be correspondingly increased in strength and stiffness. The lower end of each stiffener should be attached to the shell plating, to the inner bottom plating or to efficient horizontal plating. At each deck level which forms the top of a system of stiffeners, plating should be provided of a character which will ensure horizontal rigidity in the bulkhead. In the case of hold stiffeners connected to the inner bottom plating the lower bracket or its connecting angle should extend over the floor adjacent to the bulkhead and thus should be a solid floor; the upper bracket should be connected to angles which extend over the beam space or to the beam adjacent to the bulkhead, or other effective means should be adopted for securing the necessary structural rigidity at these parts. Where it is impracticable to carry out the provisions of the Tables as to bracketing, &c., equivalent strength should be provided in all cases. Where stiffeners are cut in way of watertight doors in the lower part of a bulkhead, the opening should be suitably framed and bracketed, and a tapered web plate or buttress, stiffened on its edge, should be fitted at each side of the door from the base of the bulkhead to well above the door opening. Where stiffeners are not cut, but where the space between stiffeners has to be increased on account of watertight doors in 'tween deck bulkheads, the stiffeners at the sides of the doorway should be increased in depth and strength so as to provide efficiency at this neighbourhood at least equal to that of the unpierced bulkhead, without taking the door frame into consideration. The frames of watertight doors should be well fitted and strongly connected to the bulkhead.

60. Riveting.—The rivets in seams, end connection of plating and boundary bars of bulkheads should be spaced not more than 4½ diameters centre to centre, except on the shell flange of boundary angles where they may be 5 diameters centre to centre. Where the distance below the bulkhead deck is more than 24 feet the boundary angles should be double riveted; and where this distance is more than 35 feet, the vertical connections of plates should also be double riveted. The rivets connecting stiffeners to bulkhead plating should be spaced not more than seven diameters centre to centre, and in the case of stiffeners having no bracket attachment, they should be spaced four diameters for 15 per cent. of their length at each end.

61. Collision bulkheads.—These should have not less scantling, both of plates and stiffeners, than is required for ordinary bulkheads at 30 inch spacing, but the spacing of the stiffeners should not exceed 24 inches.

Construction of Watertight Decks, Trunks, Ventilators, &c.

62. Construction of Watertight Decks, Trunks, &c.—Watertight decks, trunks, and ventilators shall be of the same strength as the watertight bulkhead at the place where they occur. The means used for making them watertight and the arrangements adopted for closing the openings in them shall be to the satisfaction of the Surveyor.

Special arrangements for the drainage of the deck will be necessary and the drainage pipes should be so fitted with valves, or disposed in such a manner as to avoid risk of water passing from a damaged to an undamaged compartment.

Steps and recesses in bulkheads shall be as watertight and as strong as the bulkhead at the place where each occurs.

63. Watertight Decks and Steps.—Watertight decks and steps in bulkheads should have beams intermediate in size between those given for stiffeners in Tables 1 and 2 in Appendix II, except where such beams are fitted in short length bracketed at each end, when they may be based on Table 1. The length to be used with the Tables should be the greatest distance between the points of support, and the head should be the distance from the bulkhead deck to the watertight deck minus half the distance between the points of support under the beams. The horizontal plating should be at least .04 inch thicker than required for bulkheads under the same head from the bulkhead deck. Where frames pass through a watertight deck, watertightness should be maintained by means of caulked angle chocks, or by cast-steel chocks efficiently secured and rust jointed. Care should be taken that the rivet connections of stanchions, &c., are sufficient to withstand the load due to water pressure, and the distance between points of support should not exceed 15 feet.

64. Watertight Recesses.—The vertical sides and horizontal tops of watertight recesses should be framed and stiffened so as to provide strength and stiffness not less than as required for watertight bulkheads.

Watertight trunks for ventilation or any other purpose are to be carried at least up to the margin line.

65. Longitudinal Bulkheads.—All provisions relating to main transverse watertight bulkheads shall apply to longitudinal bulkheads, so far as is practicable.

Watertight longitudinal bulkheads should be equal in strength, stiffness and efficiency to transverse bulkheads of the same depth and should be constructed in a similar manner.

66. Watertight Tunnels.—The sizes of the stiffeners should be in accordance with Table 5 in Appendix II and the stiffeners should be spaced 36 inches apart. The foot of each stiffener should overlap, and be attached to, the tunnel base angle in all cases. Curved plating may be of the thickness permitted for 30-inch spacing in Table 4, but flat plating should be of the thickness required for the actual spacing of the stiffeners. (See paragraph 69 as to testing.)

67. Inner Skins.—These should be of such strength and construction as will enable them to withstand a head of water up to the bulkhead deck.

68. Prohibition of Changes in Structure.—No change is to be made in the structure of the bulkheads, watertight decks, trunk ventilators or any other part of the sub-division arrangements after the completion of the survey without the permission of the Government of Bengal.

Examination and Testing of Watertight Bulkheads, Decks, &c.

69. Examination and Hose-testing of Watertight Bulkheads and Decks.—Testing main compartments by filling them with water is not compulsory. A complete examination of the bulkheads shall be made by a surveyor; and, in addition, a hose test shall be made in all cases.

After completion a hose or flooding test shall be applied to watertight decks and a hose test to watertight trunks.

Hose-testing of watertight bulkheads, decks, and tunnels should be carried out under simultaneous inspection on both sides of the plating, while water is being played upon all riveted and caulked surfaces. The pressure of the water in the hose should not be less than thirty lbs. per square inch.

70. Pressure test of certain Bulkheads.—Fore and after peaks, inner skins, and double bottoms should be filled and subjected to a head of water up to the bulkhead deck. The same test should be applied to deep tanks and all compartments intended to hold liquids if the bulkheads of these form part of the sub-division of the ship.

It is desirable that air pipes should extend only to a position immediately above the bulkhead deck. If these air pipes however be carried higher than this, then the tank or double bottom should be tested with a head equal to the height of the top of the air pipe.

The tests referred to in paragraphs 69 and 70 should be made upon construction; and at each annual survey careful examination should be made of the parts so tested, to ensure that their watertightness has not been impaired.

Acceptance of Equivalent Arrangements.

71. If the owner or builder of a passenger steamer desires to adopt any arrangement or apparatus instead of a particular arrangement or apparatus required by these Instructions, full particulars should be submitted for the consideration of the Government of Bengal. Unless the proposed arrangement or apparatus is at least as effective as that required by these Instructions it cannot be sanctioned.

Information to be sent to the Consultative Branch.

72. The following information should be supplied to the Surveyor by the builder of the ship at as early a stage as possible and in any case before work on the sub-division arrangements is commenced.

A.

(a) An outline sketch of the vessel showing the proposed arrangement of bulkheads (including those for resisting fire), double bottom, tunnels for shafting or any other purpose and also watertight decks and inner skin if fitted. If longitudinal bulkheads are to be fitted, they should be shown and should be marked "watertight" or "non-watertight." The sketch is required to enable the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal to ascertain that the proposed arrangements for sub-division comply with the foregoing instructions generally and apart from structural details, and particularly that the mean length of each compartment does not exceed the maximum permissible length (paragraphs 8 to 13). The sketch should be on a sufficiently large scale to show clearly all the arrangements, and any steps or recesses in the bulkheads should be shown. The length of all compartments should be dimensioned and the position of the aftermost bulkhead dimensioned from the after end of the sub-division load water-line. If there are steps or recesses in the bulkheads, all the necessary measurements should be shown to enable the position of the plane equivalent bulkheads to be determined (see paragraphs 16 to 18).

If the sheer of the margin line of the vessel is of the standard parabolic form* with the lowest point amidships, a note should appear on the sketch to that effect. If the sheer of the margin line is not of the standard form, or if the lowest point is not at amidships, equivalent parabolic sheer lines of standard form should be drawn on the sketch with their apices amidships level with the lowest point of the actual margin line, and intersecting the latter at points one quarter the ship's length from amidships. The corrected margin line thus drawn must not lie above the actual margin line at the ends.

The capacity and appropriation of the various spaces should be shown on the sketch (see paragraph 6).

The number of passengers to be inserted on the declaration should be marked on the sketch.

Structural details, such as the scantlings of the bulkheads need not in general be shown on the sketch.

(b) A calculation of the average permeability for the portions of the vessel forward of the machinery space and abaft the machinery space respectively (see paragraphs 6 and 7).

If a certificate of compliance with the full Convention standard is required a calculation of the mean permeability of the whole vessel for the purpose of paragraph 8 and the note thereto is also required.

The calculation should be on form B. H. 5.

(c) The coefficients of form indicated in Table I, Appendix I, should be reported on form B. H. 2. If the builder has prepared curves of floodable length, a copy of them should be obtained.

The Surveyor should also forward, if obtainable, curves of areas of transverse sections on a base of length.

When the watertight bulkheads, tunnels, and decks of a vessel are to be constructed in strict accordance with the detailed requirements of these Instructions, drawings of the structural details need not as a rule be submitted, but if the builder desires to adopt a different but equivalent method of construction, full particulars should be submitted for the approval of the Government of Bengal before the work is commenced (see paragraph 71).

When non-watertight longitudinal bulkheads are to be fitted, a sketch should be forwarded for approval showing the proposed arrangements to ensure that water entering the vessel on one side of any longitudinal bulkhead will flow as freely as possible to the other side of the bulkhead (see paragraph 54).

* A parabolic sheer line of standard form is one in which the sheer measured at $\frac{1}{4}$th, and $\frac{1}{4}$th and $\frac{1}{8}$ths of the length of the vessel from the stem or from the sternpost is 55, 26, and 7 per cent. respectively of the sheer at the stem or at the sternpost.

When it is proposed to fit side scuttles, which are capable of being opened, below a deck the underside of which at its lowest point is less than 7 feet above the sub-division loadline, a drawing of the proposed scuttles should be submitted, unless the design has been previously sanctioned by the Government of Bengal as being in compliance with these Instructions (see paragraph 40).

When shoots for ashes or refuse or discharges of any kind other than under water-line ash ejectors or discharges connected with the main or auxiliary engines are to be led through a vessel's side from spaces below the margin line, a drawing of the proposed arrangements for preventing the accidental admission of water should be submitted, unless a similar arrangement has been previously sanctioned as being in compliance with these Instructions (see paragraphs 41 to 44).

B.

(a) An outline sketch, plan and elevation, showing :—

(1) The margin line and sub-division loadline, the former corrected, if necessary, in accordance with paragraph 72 A (a).

(2) The positions of the bulkhead doors, sluices, and openings in bulkheads for air trunks and refrigerating trunkways and any portable plates in bulkheads if such are fitted.

(3) The leads of the shafting for the hand gear for the doors.

(b) When power doors are to be fitted, the following particulars, with sketches where necessary, should be obtained :—

(1) Sources of power for operating the doors.

(2) Arrangements for transmitting the power from the central closing station for operating the doors.

(3) Gauges or indicators at the central closing station, which show whether the power is available for operating the doors.

(4) Indicating arrangements at the central closing station for showing whether the doors are open or shut.

(5) Warning signals operating when the closing power is about to be applied.

(c) Detailed drawings of the different doors showing :—

(1) The various gears for operating the doors by hand and power.

(2) The indicators for showing when the doors are closed by hand.

(3) The screens for preventing coal interfering with the closing of bunker doors.

(d) Plans of under water-line ash ejectors and expellers, and the valves and other fittings connected therewith for preventing an accidental inrush of water into the ship, should also be submitted.

Duties of Surveyors Detailed.

73. Checking calculation of permeability.—Before forwarding the calculation of the average permeability for each end of the vessel or of the mean permeability of the whole vessel, the Surveyor should satisfy himself that the calculations are in strict accordance with the definite assumptions referred to in paragraphs 6 and 7 and in agreement with the appropriation of the various spaces shown on the sketch which is to be forwarded at the same time (see paragraph 72). The Surveyor should check the Builder's calculation of the volumes of the compartments and should enter the required particulars on Form B. H. 5.

74. Checking Calculations of Coefficients, &c., Table I, Appendix I.—The builder of the vessel is not required to furnish the Surveyors with a copy of these calculations, and it will generally be necessary for the Surveyor to visit the shipyard in order to check the calculations.

The coefficients are the basis for the construction of the curves of floodable length, and the Surveyor is held fully responsible for their correctness. He is therefore to check carefully all the calculations and, when satisfied, is to sign the form B. H. 2 and forward it to the Government of Bengal. The Surveyor should not ask for copies of these calculations for his own use, but should take such notes of the figures as will enable them to identify the papers at any future time. It should be pointed out to the builders and the designer of the vessel that, in the event of any alteration being made in the lines plan after the coefficients have been calculated, the calculations should be at once revised and afterwards re-checked by the Surveyor, and the results forwarded to the Government of Bengal in order that new curves of floodable length may be drawn.

75. Checking form of Vessel.—It is important that the Surveyor should satisfy himself that the form of the vessel as built is in agreement with the drawings from which the flooding curves have been calculated. For this purpose the Surveyor should measure from the drawings a series of depths and breadths to the moulded lines in the plane of each main transverse bulkhead. In ordinary cases it will be sufficient to measure the breadths at points obtained by dividing the depth into six equal parts. If it should appear to the Surveyor and the Builder that the breadths could be more conveniently taken at each tenth of the vessel's length, or in any other positions, the Surveyor should submit such proposals for consideration. When the construction of the vessel is sufficiently advanced the corresponding breadths are to be measured at the ship and the measurements are to be recorded in the book B. H. 1.

76. Checking the Position and Dimensions of Compartments.—The Surveyor should obtain from the drawings the following particulars for each compartment in the vessel and should enter them in the appropriate space in the book B. H. 1:—

(a) The distance from the after perpendicular to the after end of the compartment.

(b) The extreme length of the compartment.

(c) The depth of the compartment at the middle of its extreme length, measured from top of keel, or in the case of a 'tween-deck compartment, from top of beam at side, to top of beam at side of vessel.

(d) The dimensions of all steps or recesses.

These particulars should eventually be compared with the ships as built, and the measurements taken at the ship should be recorded in the book. If any appreciable discrepancies are found the Builder's attention should be called to the matter and the book should be forwarded to the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal with the Surveyor's report.

77. Examination of Compartments on Completion.—In order to verify the designed appropriation of the spaces upon which is based the calculation of percentages of permeabilities, the Surveyor is to examine every compartment when the vessel is completed and satisfy himself that it is practicable to use each compartment for the purpose recorded in Book B. H. 1, and assigned to it on the sketch supplied by the Builders, and that there is evidence that the compartment will be used for that purpose. If it appears that any compartment will be used for a purpose different from that recorded in Book B. H. 1, which would involve a higher percentage of permeability (see paragraph 6), the Builder's attention should be called to the matter and the Surveyor should forward a report to the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal. The Surveyor is also to see that the exits from the watertight compartments, tunnels and stokeholds comply with paragraph 22.

78. Inspection of Watertight Bulkheads, &c.—The Surveyor is to make a careful inspection during construction of all watertight transverse and longitudinal bulkheads, watertight decks, trunks, ventilators, inner skins, &c., and is to compare the thickness of the plating, the sizes of the stiffeners and the connection of their ends, the riveting and all other details with the requirements of these Instructions in order to satisfy himself that the requirements have been strictly complied with, except in so far as the Government of Bengal may have sanctioned different but equivalent, arrangements. Special attention should be paid to the stiffening of bulkheads where a stiffener has been cut in way of a watertight door, or where the space between two stiffeners has been increased on account of a watertight door, and all questions of doubt should be reported to the Government of Bengal. On the completion of the ship, the details of the construction of all bulkheads, &c., should be recorded in the proper spaces in book B. H. 1. Fire-resisting bulkheads are to be dealt with in the same manner.

79. Inspection of Openings in Ships' Sides.—The Surveyor is carefully to inspect all openings in the ship's sides such as side scuttles, inlets, discharges and ports or openings of any description. He is to satisfy himself that the position of these openings and the means of closing them are in compliance with these Instructions and, on completion of the ship, is to report accordingly in the space provided for that purpose in book B. H. 1.

80. Inspection and Tests of Watertight Doors, &c.—Watertight bulkhead doors should be tested to the pressures stated in paragraph 69 and should be reasonably watertight under the full pressure. The leakage should be collected and measured. The amount of leakage per hour together with the pressure applied should be recorded in the Book B. H. 1, and these particulars reported to the Government of Bengal.

In closing the doors for the test to be applied, the power exerted should not exceed that available for operating the doors on board the ship for which they are intended. The framework in the work-shop to which the door frame is secured for the purpose of testing, should not be such as to give greater reinforcement to the frame than the stiffening on the bulkhead to which it is to be attached.

In the case of sliding doors, unless these are very substantially constructed, intermediate points of support may be necessary along the leading and trailing edges, when the doors are in the closed position, especially if they have to resist considerable pressure.

The watertightness of the attachment of the door frames to the bulkhead should receive attention when the doors are being fitted in position and at the subsequent hose test. The frames should be carefully fitted to the bulkheads, and the joints should be of a kind that will not be liable to deteriorate with age nor be readily injured by heat.

For the efficient working of the doors it is essential that the working parts should be properly lubricated and the gear guarded where necessary.

When power doors are fitted and water pressure is used for actuating the doors or operating the closing gear, the arrangements should be such that, in the event of the power failing, the working of the hand gear will not be prevented or hindered by waterlock in the power or closing gear pipe systems.

All the doors should be operated in the presence of the Surveyor, by power, if power is provided, and by hand. In the case of bunker doors the test should be made when coal is in the bunkers. The trials should be satisfactory in all respects, and the Surveyor should see that the indicators and warning signals act properly.

In the case of dropping doors the hand gear should be available for speedy re-engagement in any position of the doors so that, should a door fail to close by dropping, it can be rapidly operated by hand.

81. Testing of Watertight Bulkheads, Decks &c.—On the completion of the watertight bulkheads, decks, trunks, tunnels, &c., the Surveyor is to see all the surfaces hose-tested as required by paragraph 69 and he should note that simultaneous inspection on both sides of the plating is required.

The Surveyor is also to see the peaks and the other spaces specified in paragraph 70 tested under pressure to the required head.

The Surveyor should carefully record in Book B. H. 1 the date on which each bulkhead, &c., was tested, the manner of testing, the defects found if any, how and when the defects were rectified, and when the bulkhead or compartment, &c., was finally passed by him as satisfactory.

82. Inspection of Load-line Marking.—Before issuing his declaration the Surveyor should inspect the load-line marks placed on the vessel's side, and satisfy himself that none of the statutory marks indicating the vessel's freeboard in salt water, is in a higher position than the sub-division load-line approved by the Government of Bengal. The Surveyor is held responsible for this duty even when the position of the load-line marks has been approved and certified by an association appointed by Government for that purpose.

83. The Book B. H. 1 to be returned to the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor.—On the completion of the survey the Surveyor should sign in the book the reports required to be made by these Instructions and return it to the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal.

Annual Survey of Sub-Division Arrangements.

84. At each annual survey of the passenger steamers dealt with by this circular for the issue of a passenger declaration the Surveyor is to examine carefully all the sub-division arrangements in order to satisfy himself that no alterations have been made in the arrangements approved by the Government of Bengal and that the watertight compartments and all appliances connected with the sub-division of the vessel are in an efficient condition.

85. Book B. H. I to be obtained from the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal.—The Surveyor should obtain the Book B. H. I from the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal and should compare the sub-division arrangements found in the ship with those recorded. He should report in the appropriate space in the book any deterioration found in the structure, any repairs that are executed, &c., and return the book to the Principal Engineer and Ship Surveyor to the Government of Bengal.

86. Conduct of Annual Survey.—The following amongst other matters, should be specially attended to. If structural alterations have been made in the sub-division arrangements, or if there is evidence that passengers or crew have been berthed, or are about to be berthed, in spaces, the permeability of which has been taken at 60 per cent., a special report should be made to the Government of Bengal.

A careful examination should be made of all watertight bulkheads, doors, decks, &c., to ensure that their watertightness has not been impaired. Non-watertight longitudinal bulkheads should be examined to ensure that the arrangements for allowing the flow of water as freely as possible from side to side of such bulkheads have been maintained.

87. Watertight doors, sluices, &c.—The watertight doors should be carefully examined to ascertain that the watertightness is maintained. The doors should be tried by hand and, where power doors are fitted, by power. The warning signals, if any, the hand gear indicators for showing when the doors are closed, and those of the power doors at the central closing station should be tried and inspected. In the case of dropping doors, the Surveyor should see that the gear for re-engaging for operating by hand is in working order.

Hinged doors should also be inspected and tried. The Surveyor should satisfy himself that the lever-operated catches are in order and the joints watertight.

The Surveyor should require all defects to be made good. Any sliding doors which are removed for repairs should be hydraulically tested in the manner required for new doors.

88. Scuppers, sanitary discharges, &c.—All the appliances for closing openings in the ship's sides should be inspected but in ships having a large number of valves and cocks the Surveyor need not insist upon the withdrawal af all valves and cocks for examination at each annual survey, provided he is satisfied after withdrawal and examination of at least 25 per cent. of the valves, &c., that the withdrawal of the remainder is, in the circumstances, unnecessary.

A careful record is, however, to be kept of the valves examined at each survey with a view to ensuring that every valve is actually withdrawn and examined at least once in every four years.

89. Side Scuttles.—When side scuttles that can be opened are fitted below the deck referred to in paragraph 40 the Surveyor should satisfy himself that the arrangements are such as effectively to prevent any person opening them without the consent of the Master.

90. Load-line marks.—The Surveyor should see that the load-line marks have not been altered in such a manner as to contravene paragraphs 2 and 82 of these Instructions.

Passenger Steamers other than Foreign-going.

91. Detailed instructions will be issued later regarding the sub-division of passenger steamers which do not proceed beyond the limits of the Home Trade.

In the meantime, a profile drawing of all new passenger steamers not requiring foreign-going passenger certificates should be forwarded at an early stage for the Government of Bengal's approval. The drawing should show the intended position of the watertight bulkheads, the thickness of the bulkhead plating and the sizes of the stiffeners.

Reports Regarding Accidents.

92. The Government of Bengal are desirous of collecting all available data as to accidents of such a nature as to admit water to the interior of a vessel and thus test the efficiency of the sub-division arrangements. In all such cases, the Surveyor who is entrusted with the duty of inspecting the vessel after damage, should include in his report to the Government of Bengal all details which are required to show whether the sub-division arrangements have proved effective; for example:—Draft and trim before and after the accident; nature of loading in flooded holds; details of leakage through the bulkheads; whether the latter were shored or not; action of doors, valves in the ship's sides, &c. See instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamers, as issued by the Board of Trade, paragraphs 33 and 34.

Cancellation of Previous Instructions.

93. These Instructions are to be considered as forming part of the "Instructions as to the Survey of Passenger Steamships," as issued by the Board of Trade and these latter Instructions remain in force with the following exceptions:—

Paragraph 50, relating to watertight bulkheads, and paragraph 52, relating to watertight doors, are cancelled so far as they apply to foreign-going steamers.

Paragraph 59, which directs that the dead lights or metal covers of side scuttles may be of ordinary cast iron, is cancelled in so far as it applies to the metal covers referred to in paragraph 40 of the present Instructions.

APPENDIX I.

FLOODING CURVES AND TABLES.

General Description.

A flooding curve for a vessel floating at a given water line and with given permeability is one showing, for any point in the vessel's length, the maximum length of compartment (having its centre of length at the point in question) which can be laid open to the sea without at any point immersing a margin line drawn three inches below the upper surface of the bulkhead deck, at side.

The length of compartment defined above is the "floodable length" at that point (par. 3) and is expressed as a percentage of the vessel's length.

The size and shape of a flooding curve depend principally on the free-board ratio (see notes, page 25), and on the permeability of the flooded space (see definition, par. 1); they depend also, to a smaller extent, on the character of the lines of the vessel and on the sheer of the margin lines forward and aft (see notes, page 25) Using the same vertical and horizontal scales for percentage of length, the ends of a flooding curve terminate on straight lines drawn through points in the base line representing the positions of the fore, and after perpendiculars at an angle θ, where tan $\theta = 2$. These lines are called the forward and after terminals respectively.

Paragraph 6 requires that, in determining the floodable length, a uniform permeability shall be assumed throughout the machinery space, another for the fore end outside that space, and a third for the after end, all up to the margin line. It will be seen therefore that, for a given vessel, three flooding curves must in general be drawn more or less completely, corresponding to the three different permeabilities, the significant part of each depending on the positions of the machinery bulkheads.

In order to determine curves of floodable length for any ship having prescribed permeability, block coefficient, freeboard ratio and sheer ratios, the diagrams appended to the Bulkheads Committee's Report should be used. These give floodable lengths (for the two permeabilities 60 per cent. and 100 per cent.), for a definite standard family of ship forms of differing block coefficients, freeboard ratios and sheer ratios. The floodable lengths obtained are in every case to be set off at right angles to the base line of the floodable length curve. For the two permeabilities mentioned, the curves of floodable length for any vessel of the standard form can be obtained directly from the cross curves given in the Plates, by the method indicated on Plate II; whilst for any other permeability the appropriate curve may be obtained (including terminal points) as follows:—

If l_1 be the floodable length at the point considered for permeability 100 per cent. and l_2 be the floodable length at the point considered for permeability 60 per cent., then the floodable length l_3 at that point for a permeability μ will be given by:—

A convenient method of arranging the work to obtain the required curves is indicated in Table II of this Appendix.

If the vessel under consideration conforms to standard type, that is to say, if the coefficients (see Table I of this Appendix) closely approximate to those given on *Plates XXVI and XXVII for the standard form, the floodable length curve determined as above will hold good for the vessel under consideration If, however, there are differences in these respects the curve obtained as above should be modified as follows:—

Let A, Fig I., mark the fore-and-aft position of the centre of flotation of mean water plane of the standard form, and A that of the corresponding point for the ship under consideration, the horizontal distance between them being mL where L is the length of the ship. Take any point P on the standard form curve, distant $\bar{x}$ from A, the ratio $\frac{\bar{x}}{L}$ being represented by p, so that the value of p varies according to the position of P. Then the longitudinal position of the point P_1 on the new curve, corresponding to the point P on the old, is given by

* The plates referred to are those appended to the Bulkheads Committee's Report.

$$\bar{x}_1 = \bar{x} \times \frac{n_1}{n} \times \frac{a}{a_1} \div \left(1 \pm m\frac{ap}{n} \right)$$

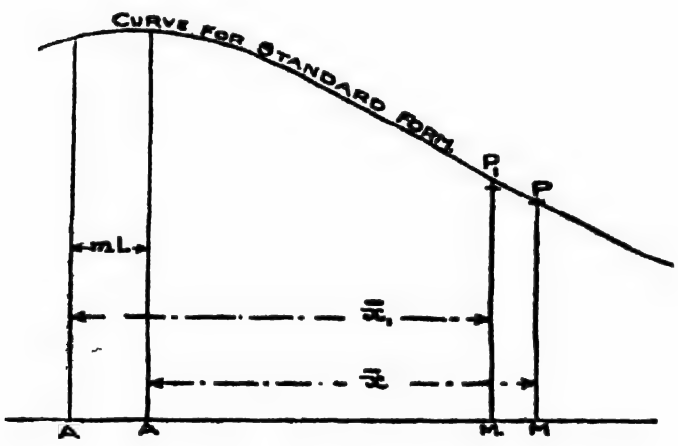
where n and n_1 are the moment of inertia coefficient (see notes, page 25) of the mean water plane of the standard form and the new form respectively. The length of the ordinate $M_1 P_1$ is given by

$$M_1 P_1 = MP \times \frac{a_1}{a} \times \frac{\beta}{\beta} \times \left(1 \pm m\frac{ap}{n} \right)$$

where a and a_1 are the area coefficients (see notes, page 25) of the mean water planes of the standard form and the new form respectively and β and β_1 are the sectional area coefficients (see notes, page 25) of the standard form and the new form respectively, at M P and M_1 P_1. The sign to be used in the last factor of the above expressions will be + when the centre of flotation of the mean water plane of the new form is before, and—when it is abaft, that of the standard form for sections forward of the centre of flotation, and the opposite sign for sections abaft the centre of flotation. This work may be conveniently arranged as in Table III. of this Appendix. The coefficients required for a new ship may be conveniently recorded as indicated in Table I., whilst the similar information for standard form is given on *Plates XXVI and XXVII.

It may be noted that, if the longitudinal position of the centre of flotation of mean water plane does not very materially differ from that of the corresponding standard form, the factor $\left(1 \pm m\frac{ap}{n} \right)$ may without material error be omitted for both length of ordinate and its position.

Fig. I.



The curves of permissible length are obtained from the curve of floodable length by using the appropriate factor of sub-division; and it will be noted that these curves will not extend at the ends to the terminal lines. They can however be drawn in, when required, with sufficient accuracy, by means of the construction shown in Fig. II.:—Make A B=2 A D, and B C=4 D E, A being the lowest point of the curve of permissible length, and A B horizontal; then a fair curve may be drawn through A E C to meet the terminal line as shown in the diagram.

* The plates referred to are those appended to the Bulkheads Committee's Report.

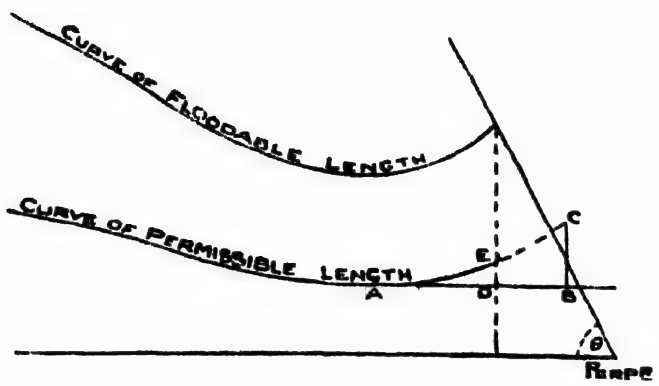
Fig. II.



NOTES.

The perpendiculars are taken at the extreme ends of the sub-division load-line. Amidships is the middle of the length between these perpendiculars. The load waterplane is that used in determining the sub-division of the ship, and is parallel to the keel, whilst the mean waterplane is midway between the load waterplane and that drawn parallel thereto touching the lowest point of the margin line. Areas and volumes are measured to moulded lines.

The sheer line or margin line for standard forms consists of two ordinary parabolas, each with apex at amidships and axis vertical, passing, at amidships, and at the ends, through points three inches below the surface of the bulkhead deck at side. If the lowest point of the margin line is not at amidships, the equivalent sheer line to be used is of ordinary parabolic form, passing at amidships through a point at the same height as the lowest point of the actual margin line. If the actual sheer departs materially from the true parabolic form, an equivalent parabolic sheer line of standard form must be drawn, so that in general it lies on or below the actual sheer line.

Freeboard ratio is the ratio between the freeboard to margin line amidships (or to lowest point of margin line where this lowest point is not amidships) and the draft amidships to top of keel. The sheer ratio forward or aft is the ratio of the sheer of the margin line at the forward or after end respectively, measured from the horizontal line through the lowest point of margin line, to the draft amidships to top of keel.

The mean waterplane area coefficient (a) is the actual area of mean waterplane divided by L × B; and the mean waterplane moment of inertia coefficient (n) is the actual moment of inertia of mean waterplane about a transverse axis through its centre of flotation divided by $L^3 \times B$, where L and B are the length and breadth of the vessel respectively as given in Table I, appendix 1. The sectional area coefficient for any transverse section is the actual area of that section up to the margin line divided by B × D, where D is the draft amidships. Knowing these coefficients for the sections given in Table I, a curve of coefficients may be drawn, and values obtained for any intermediate sections as desired.

Sizes for intermediate lengths of stiffener and heights of bulkhead deck should be obtained by interpolation.

Sizes of stiffeners are based on British Standard Sections.

In the case of channel sections the upper thickness is that of the web and the lower thickness that of the flange.

APPENDIX III.

EXTRACTS FROM THE BULKHEADS COMMITTEE'S (1914) REPORT.

33. Permissible Length of Compartments (Article VIII. (1) of Convention).—The maximum permissible length of one compartment having its centre at any point in the ship's length is obtained from the floodable length by multiplying that length by an appropriate factor, called the factor of sub-division.

(Article VIII. (2) of Convention.)—This factor of sub-division depends on the length of the ship, and, for a given length, varies according to the nature of the service which the ship is intended. This factor decreases in a regular and continuous manner—

(a) As the length of ship increases; and

(b) As, for a given length, the ship departs from the type of ship engaged in a mixed cargo and passenger service, and approaches to the type of ship primarily engaged in the carriage of passengers.

34. Curves of Factors of Sub-division (Article VIII. (3) of Convention).—For each of the two types of ships referred to in the previous paragraph (2) (b) the variation of the factor of sub-division may be expressed by a curve, of which the co-ordinates represent the length of the ship and the value of the factor. The following table gives certain points on two curves, the higher of which corresponds to the minimum requirements for the "mixed" type, and the lower to the minimum requirements for the "passenger" type.

TABLE.*

A	B.		C.
	Metres.	Feet.	Metres.	Feet.
1·00	90	295	79	259
0·90	114	374	87	285
0·84	123	404	93	305
0·65	149	489	116	380
0·50	174	571	149	489
0 39	213	699	[198]	[650]
[0·33]	274	899	[244]	[800]

Column (A) gives the maximum permissible values of the factor of sub-divisions for the length of ships given in Columns (B) and (C).

Column (B) is applicable to ships engaged in a mixed cargo and passenger service.

Column (C) is applicable to ships primarily engaged in the carriage of passengers.

The two curves referred to above are shown on Plate I. (figure 1), and these curves should be used for obtaining the values of the factors of sub-division for lengths of vessels between those specified in the table.

* The Committee having decided to recommend an increase in the severity of the factors for the larger vessels, this Table is therefore, not identical with the Table in the Convention as regards the last two lines, which are printed below for reference :—

(A)	(B)		(C)
	Metres.	Feet.	Metres	Feet
0 39	213	699	209	685
0 34	2.4	899	274	899

35. Criterion of Service (Article VIII. (4) of Convention).—For a given length the value of the factor of sub-division appropriate to a ship between the two extreme limits will be between the values of the factors determined by the two curves before mentioned, and will be automatically fixed by a criterion of service which is to form the subject of further study.

Our recommendations as to the criterion of service are contained in Chapter IV.

* * * * *

CHAPTER IV.

CRITERION OF SERVICE.

109. Article VIII. of the Convention Regulations (paragraph 33 of this Report) requires that the factor of sub-division shall decrease in a regular and continuous manner, as, for a given length of ship, the vessel departs from the type of ship engaged in a mixed cargo and passenger service, and approaches to the type of ship primarily engaged in the carriage of passengers It further provides (paragraph 35 of this Report) that, for a given length, the value of the factor of sub-division appropriate to a ship between the two extreme limits will be between the values of the factors determined by the two curves shown on Plate I., Fig. 1, and will be automatically fixed by a criterion of service.

110. The Committee advise that for the purpose of the foregoing provisions of the Convention, the "mean permeability of the whole vessel" would form a suitable criterion of service. This mean permeability of the whole vessel shall be ascertained by taking into account all spaces which are included in gross tonnage, at their appropriate permeability. In way of the machinery space, should there be any spaces above the bulkhead deck which are included in the gross tonnage, these spaces shall be included at 60 per cent or 95 per cent as the case may be, but all spaces within the machinery casings above the bulkhead deck should be taken at 95 per cent. The machinery space below the bulkhead deck should be included at its appropriate permeability as determined by paragraph 30

111. The sub-division of all vessels of 295 feet in length and upwards whose mean permeability is 70 per cent. or less should be governed by the factors obtained from Curve B, those whose mean permeability is 80 per cent or more by the factors obtained from Curve C, and those with mean permeability between these limits by a factor obtained as follows:—

$$F = f_1 - \frac{1}{10}(f_1 - f_2)\ (\mu - 70;$$

Where F is the factor of sub-division to be used,

f_1 „ the factor from Curve B for a vessel of the same length.

f_2 „ „ „ C „ „ „

μ „ the mean permeability.

CHAPTER VI.

SUB-DIVISION OF SMALL FOREIGN-GOING PASSENGER STEAMERS

124 For the purpose of the three following paragraphs—

$$l_1 = 547 - 3{\cdot}6\ \mu, \text{ and}$$

$$l_2 = 462 - 2{\cdot}9\mu$$

where μ is the mean permeability of the whole vessel as defined in paragraph 110. Values of μ greater than 80 per cent. or less than 70 per cent. should be taken as 80 per cent. and 70 per cent. respectively.

125. Vessels under 285 feet and not under l_1 feet in length should be sub-divided throughout by the factor of sub-division obtained, either directly or by interpolation, from Figure 2, Plate I.

126. Vessels under l_1 feet and not under l_2 feet in length should be sub-divided so that (1) neither the peak nor either of the two compartments immediately abaft the peak shall exceed the floodable length, and that (2) the combined length of these three compartments shall not be less than 35 per cent of the length of the vessel.

127. Vessels under l_2 feet in length should be sub-divided so that (1) neither the peak nor the compartment immediately abaft it shall exceed the floodable length, and that (2) the combined length of these two compartments shall not be less than 17½ per cent of the length of the vessel.

128. The provisions of paragraphs 42 to 44* relating to steps and recesses are not intended to apply to bulkheads fitted in addition to those required under the foregoing paragraphs, but it will be understood that the peak and machinery space bulkheads required by paragraph 47† are to be fitted in all the above cases.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 2nd August 1926.

No. F.-135 C.S.R.-26.—The following resolutions by the Secretary of State for India in Council are published for general information. The amendments have no application to those Government servants the control over whom has been delegated to the Government of India and to Local Governments by the Civil Services (Governor's Provinces) Delegation Rules, 1926 :—

RESOLUTION.

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (2) of section 96B of the Government of India Act, the Secretary of State for India in Council, with the concurrence of a majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India held on the 13th day of April 1926, hereby makes the following amendments to the Fundamental Rules, namely :—

1. In rule 9 of the said rules at the end of clause (5) the following shall be inserted, namely :—

> "but does not include a sumptuary allowance nor the grant of a free passage by sea to or from any place outside India."

2. From rule 44 of the said rules the note shall be omitted.

3. In rule 78 of the said rules, in clause (a) for the figure "83 (g)" the figure "83 (7)" shall be substituted, and in clause (b) for the figure "83 (g)" the figure "83 (7) (b)" shall be substituted.

4. In rule 81 of the said rules :—

(a) in the proviso to clause (a) after the word "pay" where it first occurs the words "or on average pay under rule 83 (7) (a)" shall be inserted, and after the word "pay" where it occurs for the second time the words "under rule 83 (7) (b)" shall be inserted ; and

(b) in clause (b) after the words "Rules previously in force" the words "but excluding special disability leave on average pay under rule 83 (7) (a)" shall be inserted.

5. For rule 83 of the said rules the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"83.—(1) Subject to the conditions hereinafter specified a local Government may grant special disability leave to a Government servant who is disabled by injury intentionally inflicted or caused in, or in consequence of, the due performance of his official duties or in consequence of his official position.

(2) Such leave shall not be granted unless the disability manifested itself within three months of the occurrence to which it is attributed, and the person disabled acted with due promptitude in bringing it to notice. But the Governor General in Council, if he is satisfied as to the cause of the disability, may permit leave to be granted in cases where the disability manifested itself more than three months after the occurrence of its cause.

(3) The period of leave granted shall be such as is certified by a medical board to be necessary. It shall not be extended except on the certificate of a medical board, and shall in no case exceed 24 months.

(4) Such leave may be combined with leave of any other kind.

(5) Such leave may be granted more than once if the disability is aggravated or reproduced in similar circumstances at a later date, but not more than 24 months of such leave shall be granted in consequence of any one disability.

(6) Such leave shall be counted as duty in calculating service for pension, and shall not, except as provided in rule 78 (b), be debited against the leave account.

(7) Leave salary during such leave shall, subject to the maxima and minima prescribed in rules 89 and 90, be equal—

(a) for the first four months of any period of such leave, including a period of such leave granted under clause (5) of this rule, to average pay, and

(b) for the remaining period of any such leave to half average pay, or at the Government servant's option, for a period not exceeding the period of average pay which would otherwise be admissible to him, to average pay.

(8) In the case of a person to whom the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, applies the amount of leave salary payable under this rule shall, with effect from the 1st July 1924, be reduced by the amount of compensation payable under section 4 (1) (d) of the said Act.

(9) The provisions of this rule apply to a civil servant disabled in consequence of service with a military force, if he is discharged as unfit for further military service, but is not completely and permanently incapacitated for further civil service ; but any period of leave granted to such a person under military rules in respect of his disability shall be reckoned as leave granted under this rule for the purpose of calculating the period admissible.

83A. The Governor General in Council may extend the application of the provisions of rule 83 to a Government servant who is disabled by injury accidentally incurred in or in consequence of the due performance of his official duties or in consequence of his official position, or by illness incurred in the performance of any particular duty which has the effect of increasing his liability to illness or injury beyond the ordinary risk attaching to the civil post which he holds. The grant of this concession is subject to the further conditions—

(i) that the disability, if due to disease, must be certified by a medical board to be directly due to the performance of the particular duty ; and

(ii) that, if the Government servant has contracted such disability during service otherwise than with a military force, it must be, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, so exceptional in character or in the circumstances of its occurrence as to justify such unusual treatment as the grant of this form of leave."

RESOLUTION.

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (2) of section 96B of the Government of India Act, the Secretary of State for India in Council, with the concurrence of the majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India held on the 22nd June, hereby makes the following amendments to the Fundamental Rules, namely :—

I. At the end of rule 83A of the said rules, the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"and (iii) that the period of absence recommended by the medical board may be covered in part, by leave under this rule and in part by other leave, and that the amount of special disability leave granted on average pay may be less than four months."

11. After rule 83A of the said rules the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"83B. —(1) A Government servant who has been granted special disability leave under rule 83, and whose domicile is elsewhere than in Asia, may be granted by the authority which sanctioned the special disability leave, free passage by sea for himself, his wife, and children, to the United Kingdom, or to any port in Europe or in a British colony, dominion, or possession, and on the conclusion of such leave return passage to India, unless he takes leave other than leave on medical certificate in continuation of special disability leave, in which case return passage shall not be granted save with the special sanction of the Secretary of State in Council. Provided that the cost of any passages granted under this rule shall not exceed the cost of passages between India and the United Kingdom.

(2) Passages granted under this rule may include travel by land between port of embarkation and port of debarkation, and shall be of such class as the sanctioning authority in each case may determine.

(3) The Governor General in Council may extend the application of the provisions of clauses (1) and (2) to a Government servant who has been granted special disability leave under rule 83A, and whose domicile is elsewhere than in Asia, provided that he may, at his discretion, grant free passages to the Government servant only, or to the Government servant and his wife only.

(4) For the purpose of this rule—

(i) the domicile of a Government servant shall be determined in accordance with the provisions set out in the schedule to these rules ;

(ii) "child" means a legitimate child (including a step-child) residing with and wholly dependent on the Government servant, who, if a female, is unmarried, or, if a male, is under the age of 16."

And the said rules shall have effect and be deemed always to have had effect as though they had been so amended on the 13th April 1926.

RESOLUTION.

TARIFFS.

Simla, the 14th August 1926.

No. 221T. (2).—The report of the Tariff Board regarding the grant of protection to the ship-building industry was published for general information on Friday, the 13th August.

2. The Government of India accept the finding of the Tariff Board that the ship-building industry in India does not require protection, except in so far as it is affected by the protective duties on iron and steel.

They also agree with the Board that the duty on ships and other vessels for inland and harbour navigation when imported in parts, should be 10 per cent. ad valorem, subject to a minimum of Rs. 35 per ton on protected iron and steel.

3. But as the Board have pointed out, this minimum rate is based on the existing rates of duty, and may require modification as a result of the statutory enquiry into the iron and steel industry which is now in progress. The Government of India, therefore, have decided to postpone legislation to give effect to the Board's present recommendation until the result of the statutory enquiry is known. Meanwhile, however, they have decided to exempt, by notification under section 23, Sea Customs Act, the iron and steel in ships and other vessels imported for inland and harbour navigation from so much of the protective duties as is in excess of 10 per cent. ad valorem or Rs. 35 per ton, whichever is higher.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the above resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations, all Departments of the Government of India, the Director General of Commercial Intelligence and Statistics, the Indian Trade Commissioner in London, and the Secretary, Tariff Board.

ORDERED also that it be published in the Gazette of India.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

CALCUTTA, THE 20TH AUGUST 1926.

RESOLUTION—No. 5606Com.

In pursuance of the provisions of Schedule I, Part II, item 27 and of Schedule II, item 17 of the Devolution Rules, the Secretary of State for India in Council framed the following rule, which was published for general information under the Government of India, Department of Industries and Labour, notification No. S. 420, dated the 7th January 1926 :—

> "The purchase of imported stores and stationery for Governors' Provinces shall be regulated by rules to be prescribed by Local Governments".

Clause (5) of paragraph 1 of Schedule III to the Devolution Rules and clause (5) of rule 1 of the Executive Rules relating to the financial powers of local Governments in respect of reserved subjects have also been cancelled. These cancellations were published under the Government of India's (1) Home Department notification No. F.-290/25 (24), dated the 21st January 1926, and (2) Finance Department notification No. F-35-Ex/26, dated the 9th March 1926.

No restrictions have been laid down by the Secretary of State in Council and the purchase of imported stores in Governors' Provinces will in all cases be regulated only by such rules as the Governor in Council or the Governor acting with his Ministers, as the case may be, may prescribe. The local Government thus have full powers in the matter.

2. In communicating these orders of the Secretary of State, the Government of India have suggested that in drawing up the rules to be prescribed, the local Government may find it convenient, where applicable, to follow in principle the rules governing the purchase of stores for central departments which were promulgated with the Industries and Labour Department Resolution No. S.-217, dated the 6th May 1924. In publishing the rules with the above resolution the Government of India observe as follows :—

"* * * The main features of the new rules consist in the assertion of a more definite preference for stores produced and manufactured, wholly or partly, in India, an important extension of the power to purchase imported stores and the introduction of a central purchasing agency in India, namely, the Indian Stores Department. This Department, as announced on the 10th December 1921, was created on a temporary basis with effect from the 1st January 1922, on which date the Chief Controller of Stores assumed charge of his duties and proceeded to formulate a detailed scheme of organisation This scheme, after consideration by the Government of India, was submitted to the Secretary of State who has now sanctioned the constitution of the Indian Stores Department on a permanent basis."

"The revision of the Stores Purchase Rules and the establishment of Indian Stores Department are the direct outcome of the policy which aims at the encouragement of the industries of the country without sacrificing economy, and the Government of India take this opportunity of impressing upon all departments and officers purchasing stores the importance which they attach, not only to a strict adherence to the letter of the rules, but also to a loyal observance of the policy underlying them. * * * * The observance of this policy, coupled with utilisation to the fullest possible extent of the services of the Indian Stores Department, will, it is confidently anticipated, promote both the objects which the Government of India have in view, namely, encouragement of manufacture in India and economy in the purchase of Government stores."

3. The Governor in Council accepts the suggestion of the Government of India, and has decided to adopt the rules governing the purchase of stores for central departments promulgated with the Department of Industries and Labour Resolution cited above, subject to such modifications as are necessary to meet the requirements of this province. The rules as now approved by the Governor in Council are appended to this Resolution, and supersede those promulgated with the Government of India, Commerce and Industries Department, Resolution No. 5829-5876-II, dated the 24th July 1913.

4. The Governor in Council desires to emphasise that the policy underlying the adoption of the central departments' rules as modified is the same as that at which the Government of India aim, viz., the encouragement of the industries of the country without sacrificing economy ; and he similarly desires to impress upon all departments and officers purchasing stores the importance which he attaches, not only to a strict adherence to the letter of the rules, but also to a loyal observance of the policy underlying them. At the same time he desires to observe that while departments and officers are not compelled to purchase stores from or through the central purchasing agency, the utilization to the fullest extent of the services of the Indian Stores Department, would, as the Government of India observe, promote the objects in view, namely, encouragement of manufactures in India and economy in the purchase of Government Stores.

5. These rules are not applicable to stationery and printing stores required for the public service. The lists, specifications and tests referred to in the rules will be issued separately.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be forwarded to the several Departments of the Government of Bengal, all Heads of Departments and offices and to the Accountant-General, Bengal, for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be forwarded to the Chambers of Commerce and Associations and that it be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Governor in Council,

M. C. McALPIN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Rules for the supply of Articles for the Public Service.

RULE 1.—Articles manufactured in India from Indian materials.—All articles which are produced in India in the form of raw material, or are manufactured in India from materials produced in India should, in preference to articles not manufactured in India or wholly or partly manufactured in India from imported materials, be purchased locally, provided that the quality is sufficiently good for the purpose, and the price reasonable.

Note.—Although a strict comparison of prices is not enjoined by this rule, it is essential in the interests of economy that the purchasing officer should take into consideration, so far as may be possible, the price at which articles of similar quality not manufactured or produced in India can be purchased at the time.

RULE 2.—Articles manufactured in India from imported materials.—Articles wholly or partly manufactured in India from imported materials should also be purchased in India in preference to articles not manufactured in India provided that the quality is sufficiently good and the price not unfavourable.

RULE 3.—Articles which are not manufactured in India.—Articles which are not manufactured in India should be obtained by indent upon the Store Department, London, except in the following cases :—

(a) When the articles are already in India at the time of order or are already on their way out, and their price and quality are not unfavourable as compared with those at which similar articles could be obtained through the Store Department, London, and the cost of the supply does not exceed the limits prescribed in Rule 11. When the total value of the articles required is trifling it is generally desirable to purchase them locally.

(b) In the case of important construction works let out on contract, articles not manufactured in India required for the construction of such works may be supplied by the contracting firm subject to the following conditions :—

(i) That the firm from which the articles are purchased is approved by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department or by the Government of Bengal and is included in either of the lists of firms so approved [Lists I and I (a)].

(ii) That the articles are subject to such current specifications and tests as may be prescribed by Government.

(c) Plant and machinery and component parts thereof may be purchased from branches * established in India of manufacturing firms borne on the list of the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department (List II), provided that the following conditions are observed :—

(i) That the purchase is made by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department.

(ii) That the plant and machinery are of standard patterns such as are ordinarily manufactured by the firm, and have actually been so manufactured.

(iii) That the branch firm entertains a staff of expert mechanics capable, when so required, of erecting and repairing the plant and machinery which it supplies.

(iv) That the actual price of the articles (exclusive of any expenditure representing cost of erection) is as low as that at which articles of the same make can be supplied by the Store Department, London

(v) That when test or inspection of the plant or machinery during manufacture or before shipment is necessary or desirable arrangements are made for such test and inspection to be carried out by the India Store Department, London.

Note 1.—It should clearly be understood by indenting officers that this rule is subject to the preference which should be given under Rules 1 and 2 to articles of Indian manufacture.

* Branches may be held to cover approved technical agents of manufacturers who do not merely act as selling agents but are also in a position to render the same kind of technical assistance in India as actual branches of the firms

RULE 4.—Articles which should be purchased in India.—The following articles, whether manufactured or produced in India or not, should be purchased in India provided that they comply with the current specifications, are of the requisite quality, and can be obtained at a not unfavourable price :—

(a) Those of a perishable nature.
(b) Explosives.
(c) Block tin.

(d) Wines and spirits and bottled beer for the use of Government hospitals in India.
(e) Kerosine oil.
(f) Plant and materials for electric installations intended to take current from existing centres; and small electrical power and lighting plants of not more than 25 kilowatt capacity which involve the provision of generators and cables for distribution, provided they comply with such current specifications and tests as may be prescribed by Government.
(g) Australian timber.
(h) Australian copper.
(i) Italian marble.
(j) British Columbian timber.
(k) Plant and materials for small gas installations, the cost of which does not exceed Rs. 15,000.
(l) Cheap articles of common use required in small quantities only.
(m) African and Australian coal.
(n) Lubricating and fuel oil.
(o) Such other classes of articles, that can be obtained more economically in the local market or that cannot conveniently be purchased through the agency of the London Store Department, as may from time to time be prescribed by Government.

RULE 5.—Special purchases in India.—In cases of emergency, or when inconvenience to the public service would be caused by waiting to obtain an article from England through the India Store Department, London, or when, owing to the greater promptitude of supply, an economy can be effected by purchasing in India articles which, under the foregoing rules, should be obtained through that Department, the purchase may be made in India, subject to the limits prescribed in Rule 11, provided that the articles are in India at the time of order or are already on their way out. Particulars of such sanctions to local purchase should be entered in the prescribed register, and, in cases where the value of the articles exceeds Rs. 1,000 the sanctioning officer should place on record the reasons which make such local purchase desirable.

RULE 6.—Inter-departmental purchases.—Nothing in the rules is to be deemed to prohibit the purchase of stores by one department from another.

RULE 7.—Method of obtaining stores not purchased in India.—All articles which, under the foregoing rules, are not to be bought in India, should ordinarily be obtained by indent on the India Store Department, London, except those the purchase of which outside India is specially authorised by these rules. Such purchase is at present permissible in the case of the following articles:—

(i) Seeds.
(ii) Cinchona bark.
(iii) Articles for experimental or research purposes required by officers approved by Government. A list of the officers thus approved is given in the Appendix.
(iv) Excise instruments and apparatus required by Excise Departments for experimental or research purposes.
(v) China, glass, cutlery, plate, crockery and perishable fabrics, including linen for residences which are furnished by Government.
(vi) Australian timber.
(vii) British Columbian timber.
(viii) Such articles as Superintendents of Vaccine Depots may require for the preparation of vaccine lymph (e.g., lanoline and glycerine).
(ix) Chemicals and scientific instruments which do not require careful inspection and testing, or which are of standard description usually quoted by well-known firms, provided that the articles cannot be procured from the Medical Store Depots.

Note—Payments for stores purchased under this rule should be made direct to the suppliers by the purchasing officers.

RULE 8.—Method of comparing prices.—In all cases in which the selection of source of supply depends upon comparison of prices the procedure to be adopted for such a comparison is as follows :—

(i) A reference should be made to Home prices notified continually by the India Store Department, London, to the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, or as otherwise ascertained, and freight should be added at the current rates paid by the India Store Department, London, together with such charges for interest, insurance, and freight brokerage as may be declared from time to time by the Chief Controller of Stores. Lists of prices received from the Chief Controller of Stores will be furnished to indenting officers from time to time.

(ii) In cases of important contracts, the prices ruling in the English market should be ascertained by telegraphic reference to the India Store Department, London.

(iii) In cases where the necessary information as to Home prices is not available the purchase in India shall be subject to the condition that the price is reasonable.

(iv) In order to arrive at the market value at an Indian port of the article imported from England the following charges shall be included :—

(a) Landing, wharfage and port charges.

(b) Customs duty as shown in the tariff to be applicable to the article in question, to be calculated on its cost plus the additional charges mentioned in the earlier part of this rule.

(v) The cost of carriage to site from port or place of manufacture, as the case may be, shall be taken into account.

RULE 9.—Tests.—Any articles purchased in India which should be tested are liable to the specifications laid down from time to time by competent authority, with the approval of Government and should be required to pass the tests prescribed for such articles.

RULE 10.—Firms from which iron and steel may be bought in India.—Important iron and steel work, if purchased in India, should only be obtained from firms approved by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, and entered in a schedule as corrected from time to time by that officer (List III).

Note 1—By "important iron or steel work" are meant articles of iron or steel which form important components of the project in hand, e g, bridge girders and roof trusses, built up in the firm's workshops and supplied ready for erection, in such sections as may be convenient, and rolled steel beams, rails or other sections cut to length or otherwise prepared at the firm's workshops to suit the indenting officer's requirements. The intention of the rule is to ensure that parts, the accurate preparation of which is essential to the security of a project, shall be obtained only from firms which possess workshops and appliances capable of turning out work of the desired standard. The raw materials used may be either imported or of Indian manufacture, subject to the usual specifications
